

7,000 JOBS FOR NEW DY5 ZONE

Report by Peter Madeley

A MULTI-MILLION pound enterprise zone in Brierley Hill that will see 7,000 jobs created has been given the go-ahead by the Government.

The sprawling development in Brierley Hill includes plans for improved transport links and is expected to see £589 million ploughed into the region's economy each year.

It will occupy around 700,000sqm of land at Blackbrook Valley industrial estate and Pensnett and will also offer high-tech office space in the Waterfront complex.

Announcing the scheme at Waterfront West, Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government Sajid Javid said it forms a key part of the Government's efforts to 'fire up the Midlands Engine'.

Secretary Sajid Javid in Brierley Hill with Pete Lowe, the leader of Dudley Council

"I've seen for myself the real potential this site has and with cutting edge office facilities it will help attract the brightest and best of industry," said the Communities Secretary, who is also MP for Bromsgrove.

The site has been formally named DY5 - Dudley's Business and Innovation Enterprise Zone, and work is expected to start there in April.

Mr Javid added: "This is going to make a big difference. Local people here have fought really hard to get this enterprise zone. It means it will attract lots more businesses to come to Dudley and to the Black Country and create lots more jobs, especially in high-tech manufacturing."

Advanced

Bosses at Dudley Council say the enterprise zone will become the high tech office hub of the region's industry, connecting advanced manufacturing to industrial sites via new Midland Metro links.

It will also see 18,000sqm of vacant office space reoccupied, along with the creation of new plots for manufacturing and technology firms.

Councillor Pete Lowe, leader of Dudley Council and vice-chair of the West Midlands Combined Authority, said: "Our new enterprise zone will put Brierley Hill, the borough and the wider region on the national and international map as a place to come and do business and thrive."

"The zone will demonstrate our ingenuity and ability to breathe new life into businesses and support our ethos - Made in the Black Country, sold around the world."

INTEREST BUBBLES OVER FOR RARE CAR AT AUCTION

Auctioneer Mark Hannam with the rare Isetta bubble car that was found in Stourbridge garage, untouched since the 1970s

AN UNUSUAL bubble car found buried under dirt and leaves in the Black Country could now fetch up to £7,000 at auction.

But anyone taller than 6ft would struggle to fit inside the Isetta, which experts believe has lay hidden and untouched for decades inside a garage at a Stourbridge home.

The rare car was made by BMW between 1955 and 1962 and features three wheels and a small 300cc engine.

It goes under the hammer at Fieldings Auctioneers in Stourbridge on Saturday.

It has been described as a 'barn find', which is the term used by experts when a classic car or motorcycle is discovered in a derelict condition.

Mark Hannam, auctioneer at Fieldings, who discovered the car, said the Isetta would be one of the stars of the show at the auction.

He said: "I found the car at the back of the garage, covered in leaves and grime and with the paint peeling off. The family have asked us to auction the car. We felt the car has been unused since the late 70s."

The bubble car, distinctive for its egg shape, became the world's first produced car to achieve a fuel consumption of 94mpg. The vehicle comes with a spare engine, gear box and exhaust parts. Auctioneers have given a price estimation of around £5,000 to £7,000.

The Isetta was first made by Iso in Italy between 1953 to 1956. BMW was also given a licence to manufacture its own version, but re-engineered much of the car.

Also going up for auction will be a Fairthorpe 1961 kit car, made from aluminium, which has an estimation of between £3,500 and £4,500. For further information see fieldingsauctioneers.co.uk website.

DEMONSTRATION

Hundreds in protest against Trump edict

HUNDREDS of protesters gathered in Birmingham city centre to voice their anger over US President Donald Trump's controversial travel ban on people from several Muslim-majority countries.

Placard-waving protesters packed into Victoria Square to oppose the President's edict, which has been widely condemned and may also be illegal. They also want his state visit to the UK halted.

An executive order by Mr Trump banned Syrian refugees from the US, and temporarily suspended the entry of nationals from seven countries, including Iraq and Iran.

FOOTBALL

Chelsea next in FA Cup for Wolves

WOLVES have been rewarded for their FA Cup heroics at Anfield on Saturday with a sensational draw against another Premier League side, Chelsea.

Antonio Conte's star-studded team currently lead the top division and will travel to Molineux for the fifth round clash. It comes as Wolves smashed their transfer record to pay Benfica £13 million to turn a loan deal for Helder Costa into a permanent move. The 23-year-old has been in sparkling form, including in the 2-1 win over Liverpool.

FLY-TIPPERS

Spy cameras to catch litter louts

DUDLEY Council plans to install covert cameras in a bid to catch fly-tippers have received the backing of Dudley MPs Ian Austin and Mike Wood.

The local authority has announced it is considering using undercover spy cameras to catch the litter louts, who are costing council tax payers thousands.

The council has forked out £125,000 over the past three years to tackle the problem of fly-tipping across the borough, including 570 incidents in just six months.

Dudley North MP Mr Austin and Dudley South's Mr Wood said they would welcome the initiative.

PETER RHODES
The man who takes a sideways look at life

EVERY SATURDAY

NIGEL HASTILOW
He always tackles the hot topics head-on

Tributes paid to 'amazing' Derek

Derek Buxton - died aged 86

HE played football with the likes of Stan Gullis and Ron Flowers, was president of Bilston Rotary Club and chairman of Tipton and Coseley Building Society.

Derek Buxton was a man of all trades and tributes have now been paid after he died, aged 86, following a two-year battle with cancer.

His family described him as 'an amazing character' who lived life to the full and made lifelong friends wherever he went. Mr Buxton was son to Bilston Mayor Richard Buxton and his wife Daisy Buxton. He was born in Bradley and grew up in King Street.

A talented young sportsman, he played football for the Wolves academy and later played for Bilston Town FC and represented the county at tennis and cricket.

He was educated at St Martins Junior School in Bradley before going to Dudley Grammar School and joined his father's business, R&A Buxton Ltd, which had a factory in Bilston. He started on the factory floor and later took over the business. Mr Buxton opted for early retirement aged 55, and travelled extensively with his wife, Margaret.

In the 1970s he had joined the board of Tipton & Coseley Building Society, retiring in 1999 after 20 years. He was also President of Bilston Rotary Club.

A keen bowler, he was a member of Codsall, Albrighton and Worfield Bowling Clubs. He set up a bursary scheme to benefit promising youngsters, run through Codsall Bowling Club.

He and childhood sweetheart Margaret enjoyed more than 60 years of marriage until she died seven years ago. The couple had three children.

A memorial service will be held at St Nicholas Church, Codsall, on February 10 at 11.30am.

Developer chosen to transform old school

WORK could soon begin on the eyesore site of a former school in Stourbridge, as bosses announce they have selected a 'preferred developer' to transform it.

The Longlands School has been attacked by vandals since it was closed in 2011 when Stourbridge College art students moved to a new campus in Brierley Hill.

Now site owners Birmingham Metropolitan College (BMet) and Dudley Council say they have selected a developer for the land.

It follows a series of meetings with potential buyers before Christmas. Discussions also took place with councillors and Stourbridge MP Margot James.

Head of Stourbridge College, Gill Coldicott said: "Following the recent marketing of our Longlands property, BMet and Dudley Council received a number of competitive bids from purchaser developers, which were short-listed and assessed.

"A preferred developer for the site has now been agreed, with contract terms currently being finalised.

"The preferred developer will be undertaking on-site survey works in the near future.

Security

"In the meantime, security patrols continue to discourage individuals from entering the site."

Councillor Khurshid Ahmed, Dudley Council's cabinet member for regeneration and enterprise, said: "We have been working really hard in partnership with BMet for some time to bring this site back to a suitable use and we are delighted that it is paying off.

"The council has already formally agreed to dispose of its part of the site, which will help speed up the process to bring an amicable conclusion and not only improve the quality of life for people living near there but also bring an exciting new development forward."

The rundown former Longlands school in Brook Street, Stourbridge, could be revived after a developer was chosen

Pleas for extra security were made by nearby residents after an arson attack on the building, off Bowling Green Road, Wollaston, in September.

The fire spread to multiple areas as more than 20 firefighters tackled the blaze.

A video showing the interior of the building as it looks after having been left abandoned for five years was posted online in December.

Inside the former school and college building was evidence of the degradation by vandals with graffiti strewn across the walls, windows broken and tatters of forgotten art work.

The video, posted on YouTube by Kinver resident, Ian Macey, has gained attention from former pupils and residents who are all sorry to see the site left in the way it has been.

Urged

Dudley Council and Birmingham Met College have been urged to get on with the development of the site in recent months, with it being labelled an eyesore by local councillors.

The Longlands site was a school between 1912 and 1990 when Stourbridge College took over the site as its art campus.

The site was last in use back in 2011, until Stourbridge College relocated its art department to a new campus at Venture Way in Brierley Hill.

Since then several schemes to resurrect the former school have fallen through.

Security was stepped up at the site after the fire when residents' concerns were backed by calls for action from councillors and the MP.

Work begins to base GP practices in one building

WORK is set to begin this month to allow two GP practices in the same area of Dudley to operate from one building.

After concluding that there was not enough space to continue to serve more than 3,000 patients at Links Medical Practice on Halesowen Road, Netherton, it is now joining with Netherton Health Centre and its 7,500 patients based just 75 metres away.

Dudley Clinical Commissioning Group (CCG) says that at the Netherton Health Centre site there is also space to build a £250,000 extension, construction of which is about to begin and should be completed in June.

Dudley CCG is funding the relocation, and stress that patients will continue to see the same staff and that disruption will be kept to a minimum.

A spokesman for Dudley CCG said: "It is expected that patients will transfer from Links Medical Practice to Netherton Health Centre once the building work is complete.

"This is not a merger as there will still be two practices following the move, just housed in one building."

The current space at Links Medical Practice has been described as too small for the number of patients registered, and also has no parking facilities. The building's layout and steep stairs are also said to have posed issues for patients with mobility problems.

Dudley CCG highlights that Netherton Health Centre has more space and potential to expand, parking, disabled access and is close for Links patients.

Jail term facing child sex abuser

A MAN from Cradley Heath who sexually abused a young girl and made more than 100 indecent images of children has been told he faces jail.

Paul Mann, aged 35, admitted two charges of sexually assaulting a child under the age of 13 and eight charges relating to indecent images.

Wolverhampton Crown Court was told that the offences took place between 2010 and 2015.

Mann, of Woodhouse Way, is due to be sentenced on February 27.

He was told that he could expect to serve time behind bars despite admitting the crimes.

Judge James Burbidge told Mann: "The fact I am adjourning this case for sentence should not put in your mind that you will avoid custody."

Rail station's car park re-opens early

Care home to be knocked down as new facility opens

THE demolition of a Kingswinford care home has been given the go-ahead by council bosses.

An application has been approved by Dudley planners to tear down New Bradley Hall, off Compton Drive, and build a replacement next door, to where residents will be moved.

More than 5,000 people signed a petition opposing closure plans for the home after Dudley Council said it could no longer afford to run it.

The home was transferred to not-for-profit organisation Black Country Housing Group in 2014, but they then put forward their own demolition plans saying that the building was "deteriorating".

The proposal for a new 66-bed facility was granted unanimous approval by council planners.

Amanda Tomlinson, BCHG chief executive, said: "We are delighted to have been granted planning permission for our new home at New Bradley Hall, which will be fit for the future and enable us to carry on providing high-quality care to the current and future residents."

"The current building is deteriorating and a new well-designed, contemporary facility is going to improve the wellbeing of existing and new residents."

"It is important that we are able to continue our investment in the local community and by developing this new home to excellent build standards in Kingswinford we will be able to make a real difference to people's lives."

Charges and fees at halls set to rise

FEES and charges at Himley Hall and Dudley Town Hall are set to rise.

Council bosses have approved additional fees for advanced bookings of Himley Hall to cover the years 2018/2019.

Wedding breakfast prices per head are set to rise £1, from £56 to £57 and afternoon tea is set to rise from £19.95 to £21.

The internet transaction fee for all Town Hall bookings is set to rise from five pence to 80p.

A report to the council states: "Proposed fees are to account for inflationary increases and pressures that individual services face, and are calculated at a level required to meet income targets set as part of the council's budget."

Girl guides need adult supporters

NEW recruits are wanted to help girl groups in Gornal.

Rainbows, Brownies and Girl Guides are all looking for volunteers to help out. Anyone interested can contact Chris on 07792788339.

Volunteers shut stall at shunned market

VOLUNTEERS who have re-opened a landmark Dudley church have closed their fundraising stall on Dudley market due to 'a lack of footfall'.

St John's Church Preservation Group had run the stall regularly since 2009 but have called time due to lack of trade.

Over the past eight years the money raised from the stall has decreased to a mere £40 per week, rather than the weekly £200 the used to regularly raise from the stall between 2009 and 2010.

Deb Brownlee, chair of the preservation group, blamed the drop in sales on the £6 million revamp of Dudley Market, which was completed in 2015.

Deb said: "We all predicted the killing of the market because of the refurbishment."

"People started going to other markets and it's not recovered since."

"We had one volunteer, Martin, who was running the stall but it wasn't worth freezing to death for the amount of money he was bringing back."

She added: "There's no promotion anywhere for the town or the market, so upcoming events aren't advertised to try and bring more customers to the town."

"We didn't want to shut the stall, as we've got regulars down there, and we've held it off for ages. But it reaches a point where it's just not feasible anymore. We're not pleased about having to shut the stall but, unless something dramatic happens, the market is not going to get any better."

The group ran a stall which included a tombola and a raffle to raise money for the church at Kates Hill, which they have brought back into use.

Councillor Khurshid Ahmed, cabinet member for regeneration and enterprise, said: "In recent years, there has been a national shift in people's shopping habits, with more and more people choosing to shop online. Unfortunately this has had a significant impact on market trade nationally."

"Here in Dudley we are committed to supporting our market and, although its day-to-day running and management lies with Dudley Market Traders Association, we work with them to ensure we get the best out of the historic market setting."

Businessman is guilty over hate campaign

A 'DEVIOUS' Black Country businessman was behind a terrifying hate campaign against his former lover, culminating in a petrol bomb attack on her home in Halesowen

Robert McNaughton had been convicted of conspiring to commit criminal damage.

He has been remanded in custody to be sentenced next month, when it is likely he will be given a prison sentence.

Hairdresser Sharon McCann, a 46-year-old mother-of-two, who now lives in Spain, said she was relieved by the verdict. Her father Brian added: "That man put my daughter through hell and did his best to ruin her life."

Mr Jeremy Hayes, defending, pleaded for 51-year-old father-of-three McNaughton to be given bail until sentence was passed. But Judge Simon Ward rejected the request, saying: "I think he is a devious and complex man."

McNaughton will know his fate on February 17. A jury at Wolverhampton Crown Court last week heard that McNaughton wanted to 'get back' at Miss McCann, after she ended their seven year relationship in September 2013 amid claims of him being unfaithful.

The defendant bombarded her with threatening text messages and used a photograph of an intimate moment during their romance on a fake Facebook account he set up in her name.

Destroy

McNaughton was jailed for six months in 2013 after refusing to remove a 40ft high mountain of rubbish at the Moor Street, Brierley Hill, site of Refuse Derived Fuel, the recycling business of which he was a director until it folded.

Last week's trial heard he recruited 42-year-old Matthew Barker, who he had met in prison, and Joden Smith, 19, both from Leicestershire, to destroy and deface property belonging to Miss McCann.

Mr Peter Arnold, prosecuting, said: "It was nasty, unpleasant stuff, not just on one occasion but time after time, very often at night."

It ended when a petrol bomb gutted a car and damaged Miss McCann's home in Halesowen on February 1, 2015. The wrecking spree had started two months earlier when the tyres of a car parked outside the property were punctured and the front window of the house was smashed 11 days later.

McNaughton, of Tenter Drive, Halesowen had denied the charge. He will be sentenced alongside Barker and Smith, who admitted their part in the plot.

Burst pipe led to closure of schools

TWO schools in Dudley were forced to close for a day due to a burst water main which left them without water.

The pipe burst on Thursday evening on Castle Hill and some 25 properties were effected. St Joseph's Catholic and Beechwood CE primary schools were closed. The pipe was fixed by 3pm on Friday.

A South Staffs Water spokesman said: "A contractor working on behalf of Dudley Council damaged a water main on Birmingham Road. As a result of the damage, a further burst occurred in nearby Hillcrest Road."

'Geoscrub' plan at famous fossil site

There are more than 700 types of fossil, including trilobites (nicknamed the Dudley Bug) at Wren's Nest, which is a site of special scientific interest.

THE BEST OF PETER RHODES

THANKS for your favourite crossword clues. I particularly enjoyed the four-letter name for a sport, beginning with a T. It is, of course, golf.

A GROUP of Morris dancers in Essex are trying to recruit new members and say the pastime may appeal to eccentrics. And there's the problem. You cannot advertise for eccentrics because true eccentrics have no idea they are eccentric.

THANKS for your letters and emails on the subject of Morris dancers blacking-up and causing some offence. The vast majority were in support of an allegedly noble old English tradition (for which I can find very little hard evidence) and against "political correctness gone mad." I dare say the key question is this: since we became aware that blacking-up can cause offence, has the number of blacked-up Morris men decreased or increased?

A REPORT to Parliament reveals that some women are forced to wear high heels, make-up and revealing clothing by company workplace dress codes. This is clearly unfair. However, these issues tend to go off in all sorts of unexpected directions. How long before a woman wins the right to go to work in a nice, slouchy one-sie and a comfortable pair of old Crocs, even if the workplace in question is the chorus line of Chicago.

AN expert on broadcasting was singing the praises of digital on the Beeb, claiming that a modern DAB radio gives you access to hundreds of radio stations. Okay, but most of us listen not to hundreds or even dozens of stations but to one, or possibly two. In fact, the greatest techno-leap forward for people like me would be a network which guaranteed crystal-clear Radio 4 in the home, car and on public transport, 24/7. They haven't invented it yet.

SOME years ago we had a long-running thread on Swifties, those one-liners where the final word creates a joke, as in: "'Use your own toothbrush!' Tom bristled," or "'This is mutiny.' Fly-tipping on increase across borough

FLY-TIPPING is on the increase across Dudley borough, with the council being called out to more than three cases per day on average.

The growing problem has cost council tax payers almost £30,000 in six months.

Officers have revealed they received reports of fly-tipping incidents on 570 occasions from April to September. This compared to 824 from April 2015 to March 2016, and 819 from April 2014 to March 2015.

Across the two-and-a-half year period, the council spent almost £125,000 on clearing away the illegally dumped rubbish.

Councillor Hilary Bills, cabinet member for environmental services, said: "It costs us, and ultimately council tax payers, thousands of pounds each year to clear incidents of fly tipping across the borough. At a time when we are increasingly under financial pressure, this is incredibly frustrating as these costs could have been avoided if people were responsible and disposed of their waste properly.

"I would ask residents to be our eyes and ears and help us tackle this issue. Incidents can be reported via Dudley Council Plus, the council's website or our mobile phone app."

"I would also remind people that the council offers a special collection service for bulky items and a commercial waste collection service for businesses."

The data on fly-tipping was provided by WasteDataFlow.

From April to September last year, the council spent £28,696 on clearing up fly-tipped rubbish.

Assurances are sought on crossing warden staff

CAMPAIGNERS have called for assurances over the long-term future of school crossing patrols in Dudley after the council's U-turn on axing funding for the next year.

After a 20,000-strong petition and demonstrations against proposals for schools to pay for wardens themselves, the council announced it intends to fund the service for 2017/18. But this has led to questions over whether the school crossing patrols will be secured for years to come.

Kelly Round, a governor at Thorns Primary School in Quarry Bank, said: "We are really pleased with the outcome, but it is only for a year. We need to know what impact there will be in the future."

Cabinet member Councillor Hilary Bills has reiterated that schools will not have to pay for the service under the revised proposals.

"The schools have never had to pay for this service, and they won't have to," she said. "We have found a new way of funding this through the council's public health department, and their initiative to get more parents and children to walk to school."

Previously the authority had described it as 'a non-statutory service' and argued that by no longer funding the wardens it could save £395,000.

Among those celebrating was 50-year-old lollipop lady Sue Dudley, who said: "We work on these roads and we know how dangerous they are. Even when there's a traffic light, people don't always stop on the red light."

MP opens £1.5m training centre

STOURBRIDGE MP Margot James has officially opened the £1.5 million North Worcestershire Engineering Centre of Excellence.

The Conservative MP, who is also business minister, was at the Redditch centre run by specialist training provider Midland Group Training Services. "The opening of the North Worcestershire Engineering Centre of Excellence is a great example of building on local strengths," she said. "It was a pleasure to see first-hand just what can be achieved when we place skills at the heart of local industry."

The MP was joined by staff from the Worcestershire Local Enterprise Partnership and Greater Birmingham and Solihull Local Enterprise Partnership. The centre will train up to 200 apprentices over four years.

NHS charity appeal for new equipment

THE Dudley Group NHS Charity has launched a new fundraising appeal for 2017.

The charity is aiming to buy a portable sensory equipment trolley for the children's unit at Russells Hall Hospital.

THE Black Country Festival will become bigger and better under agreed plans to invest £200,000 in to the event and spread it out across all four authority areas.

The three-year scheme will see a Lye-based Balti Festival, more Black Country Beer Festivals and themed night and day events.

The plan, which will see three people employed to focus on the event's expansion, will begin this year. It was approved at yesterday's Black Country Local Enterprise Partnership meeting.

The festival, which started in 2014, celebrates the region's best traditions and attractions during a variety of events held on and around Black Country Day on July 14.

All this has been achieved largely through volunteers, but by setting a three-year budget of £200,000, three paid staff could be employed to help expand the festival.

Co-organiser of the festival, Steve Edwards, said: "Over the last three years the festival has been expanding, but to have help through the LEP to make it even bigger will be absolutely fantastic.

"It started in Dudley, but every year we've added events in neighbouring boroughs, and we would like to add even more."

Sponsor

Businesses will be encouraged to sponsor the event while the Black Country Consortium will also work with Dudley Arts Council to help identify sources of funding.

The report presented by Sarah Middleton, chief executive of the Black Country Consortium Ltd, states: "Over the next three years Black Country Festival Committee believe that they can extend the success of the Black Country Festival."

The plan is for the festival to remain focused on Dudley in 2017 then extending the event throughout the Black Country next year.

Rescue dog is an honorary All Black

Kennel boss Michelle Owen from Rowley Regis with the rehomed greyhound named Zinzan after the rugby star

ZINZAN the greyhound has become an honorary All Black after taking the same name as a New Zealand rugby legend.

The three-year-old pooch was named after Zinzan Brooke in tribute to the former player's fundraising work for a Walsall greyhound rehoming centre.

The retired Kiwi number eight, who played 58 tests for the All Blacks, teamed up with John Woodward of Wolverhampton-based demolition firm C&D Consultancy to raise money for Bark Inn Kennels, near Aldridge.

When the black greyhound arrived at the kennels to be rehomed, staff decided to name him after Mr Brooke in honour of his fundraising efforts.

But it was not long before Zinzan found a new home, and within a week of his arrival at the kennels he had been adopted.

Michelle Owen, manager of Bark Inn Kennels, said: "We decided to name him Zinzan and we had hoped to take a photograph of Zinzan Brooke with Zinzan the dog. But he was rehomed so quickly that there wasn't time. It's great he found a new home so quickly."

So far Mr Woodward and Mr Brooke have raised more than £2,000 for the kennels. They will hold a third fundraiser, An Evening With Zinzan Brooke, at the Copthorne Hotel, Brierley Hill on tonight (Thursday), at 7.15pm. During the night there will also be a charity raffle and silent auction. Tickets for the fundraiser cost £50 plus VAT. Call 01902 244220.

A 'POP-UP' sweet shop at the Merry Hill shopping centre has been short-listed for a national award.

The Treat Kitchen, which also has three shops in the East Midlands as well as running the temporary shop at Merry Hill over Christmas, has been nominated for the 2016 Citi Microentrepreneurship Awards, run by Responsible Finance, in the Growth category.

The shop is an independent, family-run confectionery retailer which was set up by Jess and Martin Barnett in September 2014.

Children's centre is on the move

A CHILDREN'S centre providing support for young families in Cradley Heath is set to move.

The current lease is due to end in March for the Cradley Heath Children's Centre based at Valley Road. It holds parent and child sessions, a baby clinic, family support and welfare rights surgeries.

Sandwell Council says it is committed to continuing to run a children's centre in the area, but at a new site. Councillor Simon Hackett said: "We are just looking for somewhere else to run the children's centre from."

National Trust needs volunteers

THE National Trust is looking for volunteers to help run its properties in Staffordshire.

Roles include a room guide at Kinver Rock Houses, near Stourbridge, an art guide at Wightwick Manor, Wolverhampton, and for a King's Door Steward at Moseley Old Hall, near Wolverhampton.

The trust's Helen Wilshaw said: "We see volunteers from all walks of life." For more information visit nationaltrust.org.uk/volunteer HISTORIAN and author Ian Bott is to give a talk to Sedgley Local History Society about a First World War air raid on the Black Country.

Mr Bott, from Wednesbury, will be presenting an illustrated talk giving an account of the airship attacks of 101 years ago. He tracks the destructive path of the nine Zeppelins and the unfolding tragedies that resulted. His talk at St Andrew's Church, in Bilston Street, is at 7.30pm on Thursday, February 9. Entry is £1.

Car cruising injunction sees drivers sentenced

TWO young drivers who admitted breaching a Black Country-wide car cruising injunction in Dudley have been sentenced.

Sam Green, aged 20, and 19-year-old Reuben Charlesworth, each admitted contempt of court for breaching the injunction by participating in a car cruise and by driving in convoy.

The two were among a number of people who had taken their cars to Flood Street car park in the early hours of August 9 last year.

The group disturbed nearby residents, who called police.

The pair, who had admitted the breach at a previous hearing, were handed suspended sentences at the High Court in Birmingham.

Green, of New Street, Quarry Bank was given four months and Charlesworth, of Harcourt Drive, Dudley, three months.

Dudley Council brought the case against the pair. Councillor Gaye Partridge said: "It is extremely disappointing that people think it's acceptable to take part in this anti-social behaviour, which upsets the lives of those living nearby."

"By bringing this case, we're sending a clear message to all those who take part in car cruising that we will be tough on it."

Dudley, Wolverhampton, Sandwell and Walsall councils, working in partnership with West Midlands Police, secured the three-year injunction from the High Court in Birmingham in December 2014. It came into force in February 2015.

Gas leak was the cause of delays

A GAS leak caused significant delays on a main road into Brierley Hill on Wednesday last week. Dudley Council installed temporary traffic signals on Dudley Road to allow emergency work to take place in Stourbridge.

Tag for man who had knife in sport shop

A MAN who took a 'large combat knife' on a trip to a shopping centre in the Black Country with his parents has been given a suspended jail sentence.

Jordan Collins was in JD Sports at the Merry Hill centre when the weapon was discovered tucked into the waistband of his trousers.

The 23-year-old, from Dudley, claimed that he had the blade as he was going fishing straight after his shopping trip but this was dismissed by a judge at Wolverhampton Crown Court.

Prosecutor Mr Robert Perry said: "He was found in possession of what was described as a large combat knife."

"The knife was seized from him and he was taken to the police station."

Collins, of Vauxhall Street, pleaded guilty to possession of a bladed article and he was given a six-month jail sentence, which was suspended for 18 months.

He will also be electronically tagged under a night time curfew between 9pm and 8am.

Judge James Burbidge told Collins that it was likely he would have been given an immediate prison term, if he had not already served almost two months in custody following his arrest in November.

Serious

Judge Burbidge continued: "Having an article with a blade or point in a public place, especially the Merry Hill shopping centre where folk are going about their lawful business doing their shopping, is a very serious offence."

"I do not for one minute accept your assertion that you were shopping in JD Sports waiting to go fishing and that you had the knife in your waistband for that purpose."

Mr Steve Hamblett, defending Collins, said: "The weapon was never actually brandished. Mr Collins was shopping with his mother and father."

"It wasn't used to threaten anyone and no members of the public saw the weapon."

The court heard how Collins had been arrested in relation to another offence, but no charges had been brought in connection with that.

One in four hospital car park fines are revoked

EVERY single parking fine appealed at Russells Hall Hospital over a year was successfully overturned.

New figures showed not one penalty was upheld when challenged by irate drivers. The surprising statistics mean every person who took the time to appeal their fine from Russells Hall during 2015/16 ended up not having to pay a penny.

Just over a quarter of drivers fined – 358 – appealed the penalty.

Those deemed to have broken the rules at the hospital are initially hit with a £70 fines but the bill is reduced to £40 if paid within 14 days.

A study from YourParkingSpace.co.uk found 26 per cent of fines from Russells Hall were appealed, which meant that more than 1,000 people paid up straight away.

Hospital bosses explained that the 'vast majority' of appeals were made by staff who had not put their permits on display.

If the 358 fines had been paid rather than appealed it would have brought in between £14,320 and £25,060.

Dudley councillor and senior UKIP member Bill Etheridge, who has been highly critical about parking fees at Russells Hall, said the figures showed anyone who feels they have been unfairly fined should appeal straight away.

Disgrace

He said: "If people feel they have been unjustly fined they should appeal, no question about it. Parking fees are an absolute disgrace anyway and taxpayers who already pay a huge amount to the NHS are being hit again."

"It's a cruel extra tax on the sick, people who work there and visitors who are worried enough as it is."

Motorists at Russells Hall are warned they will be fined if they park in drop-off areas for longer than the stated time, on red lines, on pavements or pedestrian walkways, on grass verges or block access for emergency vehicles.

A total of 1,360 fines were slapped on wind-screens at Russells Hall during the last financial year, worth between £54,400 and £95,200.

Dr Paul Harrison, acting chief executive of The Dudley Group NHS Foundation Trust, said: "The vast majority of these appeals were from members of staff using the staff car parks for failing to display a valid parking permit. On checking our permit holder database to establish they had a valid permit, the fixed penalty notices were overturned by."

Fundraising dream comes true

A BUSINESSMAN has given a £10,000 boost to help propel a Black Country hospice's fundraising efforts into the 21st century.

Mike "The Bed" Brown, of Dreamland Bedding, in Brierley Hill, has donated thousands of pounds to Mary Stevens Hospice in Stourbridge over the years.

His latest gift has enabled the charity to develop an online sales presence so items donated to its charity shops can be sold through sites such as Amazon and eBay to help bring in further funds.

The project to develop a digital sales hub has already seen the creation of three new jobs through the Government's apprenticeship scheme.

Mr Brown explained: "We have always considered it incredibly important to support those causes which do a tremendous amount of good for our community."

"Over the last decade, we're delighted to have been able to raise more than £135,000 in support of the hospice's work and we will continue to do what we can for them."

Simon Henwood, head of finance at the hospice, said: "We have already undergone a significant transformation but we needed additional funds."

Speed fines hike needs to trap the boy racers

TOUGHER laws for motorists come into force from April, with really stiff fines for the worst offenders.

For example, people caught speeding at 50mph in a 30mph zone can expect to be fined £1,000, with fines rising to up to £2,500 for the worst cases.

And to be blunt, I don't see the problem with it. Ok, driving bans for people doing 11mph over the limit seem a bit excessive, but I guess we'll just have to be careful.

Driving at 50mph in a built-up area is selfish, irresponsible, and dangerous. If it is sensibly enforced, those caught deserve to be hit in the pocket.

That is a big 'if', though. These things are never sensibly enforced.

I remember some time, about 15 years ago or so, there was a stretch of road in Cannock where the speed limit changed suddenly from 50mph to 30.

And you've guessed it, within a few yards of the sign was a carefully-concealed speed camera. A friend who worked in the area said it was well known to locals, and was always catching people out.

And that is the trouble with this sort of thing. I'm all in favour of throwing the book at self-centred boy racers with a casual disregard for public safety. If you ask me, fining them £2,500 is nowhere near enough. You can put 'em in the stocks and make 'em watch Howard's Way for all I care. I can be really sadistic like that.

But it never works out like that does it? Targeting the bad guys takes time, effort and money.

And "road safety partnerships" always seem more motivated by "working with partners in local government" to set up confusing new road layouts with onerous speed limits, which generate funds "to invest in other road safety measures". In other words, more cameras.

Expect to see more pensioners and working people being hit with crippling fines as they get caught out by new speed limits and hidden cameras. Meanwhile, the boy racers quickly work out where the speed traps are and move on to somewhere else.

WONDERFUL to see the traffic cones have now arrived for the extension to the Midland Metro tram line, which will mean an end to people having to walk 400 yards from the railway station.

What's more, for a cost to the taxpayer of £15 million, commuters will soon be able to travel from Wolverhampton station to Birmingham New Street – in more than double the time it takes on the train.

Telford's elegant Georgian stone bridge at Bewdley

Engineer Thomas Telford never forgot his humble origins

Pontcysyllte Aquaduct – known as the 'Stream in the Sky'

The man of iron who helped build Britain

A new book by Julian Glover hails Thomas Telford as Britain's greatest ever engineer

"TELFORD, for people on the move" went the early slogan for the new town created in Shropshire in the late 1960s.

And it turns out that that slogan captured much of the spirit of the great engineer after whom the town was named.

"He was always moving on," says Julian Glover, who has written a major new biography of Thomas Telford which has just been published and is BBC Radio 4 Book of the Week. "His life was all about movement. Never settled, always restless."

His book, called Man of Iron, hails Thomas Telford as a British great.

"I think Telford has been overlooked a little bit. He was Britain's greatest civil engineer," said Julian.

"Telford was a really significant figure in the creation of our country and our history and in shaping the skills of engineering which went on to change the world.

"My book tells the story of who he was, where he came from, and what he created. That's what I've tried to write, not just about structures and engineering, but the impact on his world."

Telford was not a Salopian, and neither is Julian, but as his parents have a home at Ditton Priors, near Bridgnorth, and he grew up knowing Telford's name.

In doing his research, he began at the place where 'Tammy Telfer' was born in humble circumstances, the son of an Eskdale shepherd in Dumfries, Scotland.

"I thought there was an extraordinary journey from a boy on the Scottish borders who might have spent his whole life looking after sheep, to a man who came to Shropshire and built great canals and the Pontcysyllte aqueduct.

"I began to explore his story and look in the archives, a lot of which are in London. People who met him were impressed by two things. One was that he was very practical. He was proud of where he came from and did not try to put on airs and graces, or spend money or buy a big house when successful. He was always proud of being a shepherd boy.

A horse drawn cargo being led beneath Telford's Galton Bridge, Smethwick, in the 1930s

Jolly

"They saw him as strong and solid, not a fancy city person. The second thing they saw was that he was very good company, big, bluff, with a broad face. A lot of hair, did not dress up in flash clothes, very jolly with a lot of anecdotes, and friendly and generous. He gave a lot of money away. And he was absolutely driven, really hard working."

It was in Shropshire that Telford made his name, says Julian, and many of the best projects he worked on can still be found in the county, or nearby in Wales or the Black Country.

He arrived in the county in late 1786, doing reconstruction at Shrewsbury Castle, and was soon busy with a wide range of projects, from building bridges and churches to doing excavations at Wroxeter Roman City, and had the role of county surveyor.

He designed Bridgnorth's neo-classical Church of St Mary Magdalene and the unusual octagonal church of St Michael's at Madeley.

After River Severn floods caused havoc in Shropshire and Worcestershire, he designed bridges for Buildwas, Bridgnorth and Bewdley.

He found fame as a builder of roads, bridges and canals. His major projects included linking the East and West coasts of Scotland via the Caledonian Canal and he also transformed the canal network in Birmingham and the Black Country. One of his final projects was Galton Bridge at Smethwick, named after Samuel Galton of Birmingham's Lunar Society of pioneer industrialists. Built to Telford's design in 1829, the cast iron road bridge with its single span of 151 feet was a marvel of the later Georgian age. It spans James Brindley's canal, which Telford had improved, and still stands near the rail station which is named after it.

Although Shropshire was his home, he did not have a Shropshire home as such.

"The question of where Telford lived is a challenging one. He lived where the work was. Early on he did stay in the castle and letters are written in the castle.

"He would often stay with Archibald Alison at his rectory somewhere near Market Drayton."

As part of his research Julian, who lives in London, delved into archives at the Ironbridge Gorge Museum's Museum of Iron, and came to see some of the structures for which Telford was responsible in the county, such as the iron aqueduct at Longdon-on-Tern.

"I think the Longdon aqueduct is amazing because it's so early and looks like a completely modern thing.

Suspension

"Two other favourites are both in Wales. One is the Menai Bridge, the world's first big suspension bridge. And then the other one is Pontcysyllte aqueduct just over the border, which is a World Heritage Site. When you go to see it, it never disappoints."

As for the town which bears Telford's name, Julian says he has seen it grow, and has been struck by two things – the success in landscaping an industrial environment and the respect shown for the industrial heritage of the area.

"It did not try to hide from the past. It was unusual at the time for a town to do that.

"A lot of places in Britain neglected their past, Telford cherished it."

Raw deal on rail for Black Country

WOULD it not enable the four Black Country boroughs to compete more effectively with the honey pot that is Birmingham, if we completed the 120km Black Country Railway between Worcester and Derby?

This would enable the freight and passenger trains to return over the full length straight away and put Dudley back on the national railway network. Plus, an additional main line strategic railway for Sandwell and Walsall.

Yet, the councillors and transport bosses insist that only by doing trams and, later, tram trains first can the freight and passenger trains' then return. But only by the 2040s at the earliest and only in the case of freight! And the 120km Black Country Railway will be needed for freight even more urgently once the passenger trains and stations return to the 39km of Birmingham freight only lines.

How typical. Birmingham gets HS2, trams on roads to replace diesel buses AND their passenger trains and stations back.

Tax is the answer to NHS crisis

THE Prime Minister's demand for GPs to open all hours is merely moving the problems to another part of the NHS.

The Government is fond of stating that there are more elderly people living longer, which should be a cause for celebration, but use it as an excuse for the failure of health services.

However, they are also eager to claim that we are the fifth largest economy in the world and that there are more people in work than ever before.

Therefore tax receipts should also be at an all-time high and public finances should be healthy. This is clearly not the case.

Successive Governments refuse to raise income taxes because they care more about clinging to power than providing for the people.

By raising taxes and closing all legal loopholes for tax dodgers, the fifth largest economy should be more than capable of rectifying the situation.

Caustic substances are a threat to cats

WE have four cats, all of whom have been rescued. We are also regularly visited by others looking for food and shelter.

One of these was a large ginger and white tom cat who was the local top cat. We have no idea to whom he belonged. Last week, a neighbour who also has cats, came to see if we had seen ginger as he had not looked well and had run off when our neighbour had tried to get him in a carrier to take him to the vet.

Ginger disappeared for a few days and I found him in our summerhouse looking unwell. As we have no idea where he belongs, I telephoned the RSPCA and was asked to isolate him and give him some food and water. An RSPCA inspector came and said that he might have an abscess in his mouth as his mouth was bleeding. The inspector telephoned me later that day to say that Ginger had consumed something caustic as his mouth and throat were badly burned and his kidneys were damaged. He had to be put down.

I would urge people to get rid of caustic substances safely. However, if this was a deliberate act, then whoever has done it should be ashamed. It was fortunate that Ginger trusted us enough to come to us, otherwise he could have spent a long and agonising time until he starved to death

No justice for this dog

I WAS deeply saddened to read of the cruelty this beautiful dog experienced (Stourbridge Chronicle, January 26).

So the perpetrator got his just punishment. The poor dog recovered from his appalling injuries and was then euthanased. She had no justice. She did nothing wrong.

I beg the Government to look again at the Dangerous Dogs Act.

We are learning all the time that it is the owners, not dogs, who are to blame for most of the dangerous dogs we hear about.

These poor creatures become victims of humans. It is heartbreaking!

Lay claim to cycling's home

RECENTLY in the national press there was an article that claimed that Yorkshire was the main centre of cycling in the country.

Someone wrote trying to put forward Wolverhampton as the 'capital', based on Percy Stallard's exploits.

When I first became interested in cycling in the late 1950s, there were lots of cycling clubs in the Midlands.

From my memory there were Wolverhampton Wheelers, Wolverhampton Racing Cycling Club, Penn CC, Wulfrun Olympic, Elizabethan CC, Wolverhampton CRA, Sedgley CC, Gornal Wheelers, Tipton RCC, Willenhall, West Bromwich Dartmouth, Audnam Wheelers, Wednesbury Velo, etc.

Dash round the shops to raise money

Competitors pose for a photo before the first charity fun run inside Merry Hill shopping centre

THERE was a stampede in the aisles of the Merry Hill shopping centre – but it wasn't the latest sale. Eager athletes descended on the centre for an indoor charity run. Led by Pure Gym, the group started with fun warm-ups before running the perimeter of the centre before shops opened at 11am on Sunday.

Assistant marketing manager at Intu Merry Hill, Naomi Campbell, said: "In January everyone wants to get fit and healthy again and we wanted to help our customers as well as helping with charity. We thought it would be nice to hold a charity run inside the centre." The event raised fund for Wolverhampton-based Promise Dreams.

Danger driver reached 89mph

A DANGEROUS driver who sped through residential streets at more than 80mph has been jailed.

Anton Henry had no driving licence and was not insured as he raced through the streets of the Black Country, narrowly avoiding hitting a cyclist and a lorry.

The 23-year-old drove off at high speed when a police car travelling on Amblecote Road, Brierley Hill, flashed its blue lights instructing him to pull over at around 9.30pm on September 26, a judge heard.

Police dash-cam footage played to Wolverhampton Crown Court showed Henry's car speeding along Amblecote Road, Stamford Road, Thorns Road and other 30mph limit residential streets at speeds of 70mph and 80mph.

Roundabout

He ignored a red light and went the wrong way around a roundabout and the highest speed recorded was 89mph.

The chase came to an end when he lost control. Henry tried to flee on foot but was caught by officers.

Henry, of St John's Road, Kates Hill, was sentenced to six months in prison after pleading guilty to dangerous driving, using a vehicle without insurance and driving without a licence. He was banned from driving for a year.

Mr Richard Franck, defending, said: "He just panicked as he had no licence or insurance."

Judge James Burbidge said it was "more by luck than judgement" that nobody was hurt.

CREATING BRIGHTER

Could you change a child's life?

Foster carers welcome a child into their home and into their family. They work with them through challenges that many parents will never encounter - and experience rewards that many of us cannot imagine.

St Christopher's is a local charity that has been looking after young people since 1870. We're a small fostering agency so there's a family feel to what we do.

We're looking for people to foster teenagers or sibling groups of younger children. You'll need at least one spare bedroom and the time, patience and compassion to work with a young person on a one-to-one basis.

Foster with us and you'll be a valued member of a dedicated team working to change a child's life. We provide full training and support and offer a competitive allowance of around £420 per week.

Threats will not halt mother's campaign

A FAMILY who turned heart-break into fundraising after their daughter was diagnosed with cystic fibrosis have been targeted by internet trolls.

Mother Samantha Carrier, from Dudley, has been subjected to abuse since she uploaded a video on social media which showed the harsh realities of the disease.

It showed Samantha performing physiotherapy on her daughter, Daisy, which she has to do to help the child breathe better by clearing mucus from her chest.

Thousands of people have criticised Samantha over the video, which has received over 150,000 views, asking such questions as 'how can you do that to a baby' and 'you'll break her ribs'.

But Samantha states that the threats she's received have 'spurred' her on to fundraise for Cystic Fibrosis Trust.

Samantha Carrier with daughter Daisy, who has to have regular physiotherapy

Awareness

She said: "I've been trying to raise awareness since Daisy was first diagnosed but everything went through the roof after I uploaded the video."

"People have been saying that I'm beating my own child. Someone even messaged me to say that I should have my head chopped off."

"We have to do the physiotherapy three times a day, even if we're out, so I thought I'd do the video to raise awareness, as not many people would know what I was doing."

She added: "I didn't let the horrible messages get to me, if anything, it's spurred me on to raise even more awareness."

Samantha and her husband began fundraising when they found out about the diagnosis and raised £676 within seven days. Since then, the family have raised more than £1,100.

Samantha said that she has also had positive messages from parents around the world.

"I've had mothers from Korea and America message me and tell me how fantastic the video. It's nice to see that the campaigning I'm doing is helping people all around the world."

Dudley North MP Ian Austin MP is backing the family by campaigning for a potential life-saving drug for the disease, Orkambi, which can treat the symptoms, to be available in the UK.

Mr Austin urged the Government to listen to the recommendations of the NHS Accelerated Access Review which could change the way the new drugs are assessed.

He said in Parliament: "These new treatments can transform people's lives, but thousands of people are set to miss out on these new drugs under the current rules."

"That's why I'm campaigning to make the Government change the rules on commissioning new treatments."

Record numbers now sleeping on the streets

RECORD numbers of people are sleeping rough on the streets of the Black Country and Staffordshire, new figures show.

A total of 78 people are sleeping rough in the regions, the highest since records began in 2010.

According to the figures, released by the Department for Communities and Local Government, Walsall had the most rough sleepers last year with 26, an increase of nearly 400 per cent on the seven in 2015.

Wolverhampton had 18 in 2016, while Sandwell had 11, Cannock Chase four, Dudley three and South Staffordshire one.

Stafford had 15 sleeping rough last year, compared to five in 2015. The 26 in Walsall was the highest across the two regions.

Fluctuates

Wolverhampton has also seen a rise. Thirteen people were recorded sleeping rough in the city in 2015. Lesley Roberts, Wolverhampton council's strategic director for housing, said: "Each year local authorities are duty bound to either count or estimate the numbers of people sleeping rough on a particular day."

"This figure fluctuates on a daily basis and, at this moment in time, 10 to 14 rough sleepers are being accommodated in the night shelter, at Broad Street Church."

In Sandwell, the number nearly trebled between 2015 and 2016. Just four were recorded in 2015. Councillor Kerrie Carmichael, cabinet member for housing at Sandwell Council, said it had teams across the borough looking to tackle the issue.

In neighbouring Dudley, the figures have stayed low since 2010 when recording of rough sleepers began. There were three back then and that number has never gone below three or higher than six.

In Staffordshire, the number is a lot lower. The exception is the 15 in Stafford, which has gone up from five in 2015. South Staffordshire has just the one rough sleeper, a decrease on the two in 2015.

Bird house scheme halted

The bird house back in its heyday at Dudley Zoo, where plans to relaunch it as part of the 80th anniversary have been quashed by heritage bosses

PLANS to reopen one of the most famous of the original Tecton buildings at Dudley Zoo as part of its 80th anniversary celebrations have been halted.

The relaunch of the Tropical Bird House has been put on the back burner at the Castle Hill attraction.

A major revamp costing £295,000 to create modern enclosures was announced at the end of last year.

Bosses said they were 'disappointed' plans to reopen the bird house were not going ahead.

Derek Grove, zoo director, said: "We felt this was a wonderful opportunity to bring an original Tecton building back into use during our 80th year as an all-weather indoor exhibit for small South American species. But we've been informed by heritage officials they'd prefer to develop a plan to explore potential opportunities for all the remaining unrestored Grade II-listed Tecton structures on site, rather than just devising options for the Tropical Bird House."

The protected Tecton buildings are considered classic examples of modernist 20th century architecture.

Heritage Lottery boost for landmark Georgian church

A SIX-FIGURE project to repair crumbling stonework at a landmark church will begin next month.

St Thomas' Church in Stourbridge town centre has won a £149,100 grant from the Heritage Lottery Fund for the project.

The Grade I listed church is 260 years old but its age means stonework could make the building unsafe if repair work is not carried out.

Work is also due to start on February 13 on the church toilets in the North Porch before scaffolding goes up outside the Georgian church in April.

Project co-ordinator Wendy Hemming said: "The stonework is crumbling, if allowed to continue then access would have to be restricted to the church due to falling masonry."

Not all of the grant will be used for building work. Some cash will also be used to train guides, organise tours of the church and talks on the history of the building, as well as providing display information boards for visitors.

It is hoped the work will result in the church, currently used for three services a week (twice Sundays and once on Wednesdays), being visited by more people.

Priest-in-charge, Reverend Andrew Sillis, said: "Everyone at St Thomas's Church is delighted with the wonderful news that the Heritage Lottery Fund are supporting our church project."

"Thanks to National Lottery players, we're now able to restore worn out parts of our historic building to their original condition and improve access for the whole community."

The church is also known for its musical tradition and has a choir.

Rev Andrew Sillis and project co-ordinator Wendy Hemming at St Thomas's Church in Stourbridge

Housing support offer help sessions

A HOUSING support drop-in session has been launched in Stourbridge following success in other areas.

Dudley Council's housing services provides a free housing support drop-in service, available to anyone needing assistance to maintain their independence by accessing support for their needs.

Advice and guidance is available on many issues, ranging from budgeting and finances, welfare benefits, completing a range of application forms and available local resources.

Councillor Gaye Partridge, cabinet member for housing, said: "We have drop-in sessions throughout the borough to ensure as many residents have access to the free service as possible. Anyone worried about keeping their home or maintaining their independence can just drop into one of the sessions, as no appointment is necessary."

The new session is being held on the first and third Monday of every month at Lions Health Centre on Lowndes Road in Stourbridge from 1.30pm. For more information visit www.dudley.gov.uk/dropinservice or call (01384) 812504.

Paramedic flies in for life-saving blood trial

A HELICOPTER paramedic for Midlands Air Ambulance has been drafted in to help researchers in a ground-breaking project that could help save lives of patients.

Jim Hancox, who works for the Stourbridge-based charity, will help trial giving patients blood transfusions at the scene of accidents.

The study will see whether giving patients blood transfusions who have suffered major injuries and blood loss in accidents is better than traditional saline drips.

Mr Hancox's role as a research critical care paramedic, will be to coordinate the logistics of the project.

This will include the recruitment of 25 patients for the pilot phase of the study.

Patients who suffer major injuries and are attended by ambulance crews in the West Midlands will be the first patients in the study.

They will be given either blood transfusions or saline drips at random, before their progress to recovery is then monitored.

Air paramedic Jim Hancox

bust evidence demonstrating that giving pre-hospital blood products is beneficial and, of course, there are significant clinical, logistical and financial consequences to giving all patients this treatment."

He continued: "The blood products we will be using will be a combination of O-negative blood, the universal group which can be given to anyone, and freeze dried plasma.

"We will of course ensure that people who may not wish to receive blood products – such as Jehovah's Witnesses – are identified and specifically excluded from the trial."

Jim, aged 36, who lives in Malvern with his wife Bernice, was a baker before training as a flight paramedic.

Meanwhile, it has been announced that the air ambulance charity, based at RAF Cosford, has received a £1 million grant towards the £7m cost of a new air ambulance.

Inspectors tell GP practice that it still needs to improve

Station car park is to be made larger

Compliments to the chef as he retires

Catering boss Andrew Singer, aged 78, at his retirement party in Wall Heath with his sister Dulcie Cadwallader

A CHEF who started his own business after honing his cookery skills in the navy, has decided to take his well-earned retirement at the age of 78.

After almost 40 years of running his own catering firm, Andrew Singer from Wordsley is retiring, closing his business Anddor Catering. The name of the business blends the names of Andrew and his late wife Dorothy.

Andrew marked his retirement by enjoying a meal with family, friends and former Anddor staff at The Wall Heath Tavern.

Born in Netherton, Andrew joined the merchant navy at the age of 16 and learned to cook aboard the SS British Merchant.

Andrew worked in Beatties' kitchen for a couple of years, but then decided to set up on his own and founded Anddor in 1978.

He said: "I'll really miss the job but I can still cook for the family. I'll miss seeing all my old customers."

Ambulance staff 'outstanding', says watchdog

AMBULANCE bosses have praised their staff after a trust was rated 'outstanding' by the health watchdog.

West Midlands Ambulance Service, which cares for about 5.6 million people and covers around 5,000-square miles, received the highest rating from the Care Quality Commission (CQC) following the inspection last summer.

Chief Executive Anthony Marsh praised staff members who 'work so hard' for patients and fellow colleagues. He said the trust was 'delighted' with the glowing report, the first time an ambulance service in England had been rated outstanding.

Inspectors said the trust was outstanding in terms of its effectiveness and care. It was also rated good for its safety, leadership and responsiveness.

WMAS responds to around 3,000 999 calls everyday and sends out ambulances from more than 90 stations across the region.

Mr Marsh said: "I am incredibly proud of my staff and the volunteers who support us, for providing the best possible care to patients across the West Midlands."

"Helping others is at the heart of everything we do and I am hugely pleased that the CQC saw a positive, patient centred culture."

A GP practice in Dudley, previously placed in special measures, has been told by the health watchdog that it still needs to improve.

The latest Care Quality Commission (CQC) report states some staff at Dudley Partnerships for Health are not always aware of some of the responsibilities of their colleagues.

The practice, on Quarry Road in Dudley, has 2,600 patients and was previously placed in special measures in February 2016.

Inspectors at that time found the practice was not operating an effective system with regards to monitoring high risk medicines.

But a report from the most recent inspection on October 12 has now rated the practice as 'requires improvement'.

The report states: "We found staff were not always aware of some of the key responsibilities of their colleagues that were specific to key processes. For example, mixed feedback regarding the management of clinical post highlighted the process was not well embedded."

Report by Lucy Thompson

The CQC also stated protocols, such as prescriptions, were also not embedded effectively. Inspectors also found that governance arrangements were not always effective.

The report said: "The high level leadership and accountability structures were not always clear and embedded well enough to provide assurance that improvement in the practice were sustainable. The practice did not follow a robust process to effectively manage uncollected prescriptions. During our inspection we noticed that the practice had not followed their own repeat prescribing protocol regarding issuing specific medication."

From a national GP survey published in July 2016, nearly two thirds (65 per cent) of patients said the overall experience of the practice is good. That compares with a national average of 85 per cent.

The practice was praised for its 'friendly, committed staff' and for its new effective process to allow for adequate monitoring of high risk medication.

Leadership

CQC inspectors recommended the leadership should be sustained at the practice to continue improving areas that have been identified as in need of improvement.

Joanne Chilton, practice manager, said: "The quality and standard of care that we provide to our patients is important to us."

"Although we are disappointed with the results of our recent inspection, it does reflect the hard work and commitment of our staff to swiftly address the issues. We are committed to continue making progress for our patients. If any of our patients have questions we would welcome feedback."

Artefacts are returned as St John's Church re-opens

A FORMER Government Minister has launched a national research project at Dudley College.

Sir Vince Cable, former Minister for Business Innovation and Skills in the Coalition Government, visited the campus as an ambassador for the National Students Union (NUS).

Dr Cable came to speak to students about substantial changes to the education and skills system as part of a national research programme which Dr Cable is heading on behalf of the NUS.

During the visit he met senior staff from the college and he spoke with more than 40 students.

Dudley College student union president Dan Wood, said:

"It's important that students realise they are a strong lobbying group and they can influence things."

Flog It talk at archives

ANNE Clark will be guest speaker at the Friends of Dudley Archives and Local History Service's first meeting of 2017 tonight (Thursday).

She will be speaking about her family history and her experiences of appearing on the TV programme Flog It!

The meeting is in the Dudley Archives and Local History Centre in Tipton Road at 7.30pm. Admission is free for members and £2 for visitors.

CAMPAIGNERS have begun returning some of the original artefacts to a landmark church which has re-opened after 14 years.

The grade II-listed St John's Church in Dudley was closed to the public in November 2002 when deemed to be unsafe.

But last August volunteers were able to open the doors again after a successful campaign to take over responsibility for the building.

By Heather Large

As part of the lease agreement made with the Church Commissioners, St John's Church Preservation Group was granted permission for all of the historical artefacts to be returned.

This has included six dedication plaques. The group knows where five need to be re-installed but they are unsure of the original location of one, dedicated to the Rev William Henry Crump, who died in 1882, aged 35.

Memory

It reads: "To the Glory of God and in loving memory of the Reverend W.H. Crump for 3 years Curate of this Parish. Born May 23 1847 died April 30 1882. This window was placed here by the Sunday School teachers and scholars March 25th 1883."

Chairman Deb Brownlee said: "One of the most exciting moments so far has been the return of some of historic artefacts to St John's, six plaques so far. We have identified where five of the plaques will be refitted but the location of the plaque to Rev Crump remains a mystery, and we'd love to hear from anyone who could advise us where it was fitted."

She added: "Although he was obviously highly thought of, there is surprisingly little mention of Rev Crump in the St John's Church history book."

"This could be because he was curate to the amazing Rev Noott, to whom numerous gifts and dedications were made by the congregation including the church font, who served as vicar at St John's for 62 years."

Anyone who has information about the plaques or can help with the appeal can contact the group on 07871195042 or 0752218 4461 or email savestjohnschurch@hotmail.co.uk

Safety probe on busy road after deaths

SAFETY measures including speed cameras and trees being cut back could be implemented on a busy Dudley town centre road following two fatal accidents.

Proposals for Priory Road have been put to highways bosses in a bid to increase safety. It follows a community forum meeting with Castle and Priory ward councillors at which local residents raised concerns.

Teenager Georgie Ann Evans was killed in a crash on the road in October, while pensioner Arthur Fletcher died when hit by a car in December.

Polish immigrant Kuba Oles was jailed for six years after his Audi A6, travelling at up to 100mph in the 30mph zone, struck Miss Evans' car. Investigations are continuing into the death of 65-year-old pedestrian Mr Fletcher.

Four contest by-election

THE upcoming by-election for the St Thomas's ward in Dudley will be contested by Labour candidate Shanella Mughal, Conservative candidate Jonathan Elliot, the Green party's Francis Sheppard, and Phil Wimet who is standing for UKIP, all of whom live in Dudley.

The by-election is on February 16, following the resignation of former councillor Glenis Simms. The ward currently has two Labour councillors.

Call for fair level of investment

DUDLEY North MP Ian Austin has demanded a fairer share of transport investment for the West Midlands.

He used a House of Commons debate on the Midlands economy to highlight new figures from Birmingham City University, which show that in 2014-15 the Midlands population of 10.4 million had £1.72 billion invested, compared with £3.87bn for London's 8.7 million people.

The new figures also reveal that transport funding per capita in the West Midlands is less than half of that in Scotland, as well as under 40 per cent of the level in London.

Mr Austin said: "It's outrageous we get so much less than London and Scotland. It's my job to go to Parliament and demand we get our fair share. Businesses tell me that boosting infrastructure spending to the levels spent in London and Scotland would make a massive difference to their success and the number of jobs they can create."

Brother inspires contest bid

Sadie Williams, aged 14, from Dudley has entered the Miss Teen GB beauty pageant

A TEENAGER has set her sights on the Miss Junior Teen Great Britain title after being inspired by her little brother's battle against a rare heart condition.

Sadie Williams must first win the title of Miss Junior Teen Dudley, which will bag her a place in the finals at The Globe Theatre in Blackpool later this year.

To win the title, the 14-year-old, from Hillmeads Drive, Dudley, has to raise the most money for children's charity Together for Short Lives by July 1.

It is an important cause for Sadie, as her younger brother Mason, aged six, was born with hypoplastic left heart syndrome, meaning that this side of his heart is underdeveloped, affecting blood flow.

Her family, including mother Melodie, father Paul, siblings Harmonie and Dominic, are right behind her.

Rail firm spending £15m on improving

JUST over half of all passengers using London Midland trains in the West Midlands think that the service is offering value for money.

A survey revealed that 55 per cent of customers said they were happy with the money they were paying to use the train service. That was compared to 71 per cent of customers using Virgin Trains on the line from London to Wolverhampton and Shrewsbury, and 64 per cent using Chiltern Railways services in the West Midlands.

Three quarters of London Midland passengers said they were satisfied with punctuality – fewer than both Virgin Trains and Chiltern Railways passengers – however 85 per cent of customers did say they were satisfied overall.

A London Midlands spokesman said: "We welcome this feedback. Many of the areas where passengers say they want more improvements are being addressed as part of our current £15 million investment programme."

Minister told failure of garden city funding bid 'disappoints'

A BLACK Country enterprise strategist has written to the Government's housing chief expressing 'disappointment' that the region's garden city bid failed to get funding.

Stewart Towe, chairman of the Black Country Local Enterprise Partnership (LEP), has penned the letter to housing minister Gavin Barwell and it has been co-signed by the leaders of the area's four Black Country councils.

In the letter he says the bid would have enabled the development of 45,000 homes to be delivered sooner.

Mr Towe, who is also the managing director of the Smethwick-based Hadley Group, said: "We were all disappointed to hear the announcement on January 2 of the selected New Garden Villages and Garden Towns, which did not include any villages or towns within the Black Country.

Ambitions

"The Black Country LEP, along with the four Black Country local authorities and the Homes and Communities Agency have been working to create a new 21st century Garden City in the centre of England, which, using brownfield land, will connect into existing communities and infrastructure.

"It is one of our ambitions and priority propositions to our Strategic Economic Plan (SEP). The Garden City will provide further development of housing across the Black Country, with an additional 45,000 houses.

"A successful bid would have greatly assisted us to deliver this vision sooner."

Plans for the Black Country project, which spans over 31 different sites, were outlined in March, but the scheme was omitted from the Department for Communities and Local Government's funding announcement at the start of the year.

Bosses at the The Black Country Consortium, which is behind the project, said the decision was 'disappointing', but insisted that the scheme would go ahead. They said work was progressing and that development was not solely reliant on Government funding.

Museum aim to rescue building

BOSSSES at the Black Country Living Museum face a race against time to save a historic gas showroom after council bosses submitted plans to demolish it.

Heritage chiefs want to to relocate the 1940s Gas Showroom in West Bromwich to their Dudley attraction as part of a £21 million project. But they have to act fast after a planning application was lodged by Sandwell Council to knock it down.

Laura Wakelin, director of communications at the Tipton Road museum, said: "I understand that it could be demolished in April. So we need to get the funding in place by then."

The gas showroom on the corner of Lombard Street West and High Street, along with neighbouring Parish's Restaurant, is envisaged to form part of a new 1940 to 60s town planned for the open-air museum, part of a £21 million project.

Drug-driving teen's late night hunger led to 95mph chase

A TEENAGER from Brierley Hill with no driving licence drove a car at up to 95mph when pursued by police.

Grant Chance-Hill, who had cannabis in his system, tried to make a getaway when officers in a patrol car ordered him to stop, Wolverhampton Crown Court heard.

The 19-year-old ignored the officers and sped off along Duncan Edwards Way, in Dudley, reaching speeds of 95mph along the dual carriageway, just after 1am on October 4 last year. Police dash-cam footage showed how the chase came to an end when he took a sharp left turn at a roundabout, losing control of the car and careering over the central reservation. He pulled into a cul-de-sac where he was arrested.

Youngsters to be VIPs at charity match

A HOSPICE charity is to give four children a VIP experience at an upcoming charity football match.

A team of West Bromwich Albion legends will be taking on a side of former Stourbridge players at the Glassboys' War Memorial Ground on April 2.

The Jane Webb Memorial Trophy match is being played in aid of The Mary Stevens Hospice in Stourbridge.

Hospice staff are seeking nominations for four deserving youngsters to lead the teams out. Community engagement officer Amanda Bowen said: "The whole day is shaping up to be something completely incredible, and we'd love to be able to give some really deserving children a day they'll cherish for the rest of their lives."

The second annual charity match is being organised by former Glassboys player Matt Webb, to raise funds for the hospice in memory of his mother, Jane. More than £15,000 was raised last year.

To nominate a child for the VIP experience email amanda@mshfundraising.co.uk with details.

Checks of the black Vauxhall Astra's number plate found it had no tax, insurance or MOT.

Chance-Hill, of Lower Valley Road, Brierley Hill, was given a six-month jail term, suspended for 12 months, after pleading guilty to dangerous driving, driving without insurance or a licence and drug-driving.

Tagged

He will also be electronically tagged under curfew between 9pm and 7am.

He said that he had driven as he was hungry and was heading for a local McDonald's restaurant.

Mr Richard Franck, prosecuting, said: "The officers followed him and tried to stop him on Duncan Edwards Way. When they lit the blue lights the defendant accelerated and drove off at speed."

Mr Simon Hands, defending, said: "It was a poor piece of driving but it doesn't have the attributes of other chases. He took a stupid decision to go to McDonald's."

Judge James Burbidge said it was fortunate it was 1.10am and that there was little traffic on the roads. He told Chance-Hill: "You were going double the speed limit. Mercifully there was limited traffic."

Club exhibition moves to new venue

Generations – Gary Jones, from Dudley Camera Club, secured a prize for his atmospheric piece called 'Barrow Boys'

DUDLEY Camera club is holding its annual photographic exhibition in a new location, following the closure of its previous venue, Dudley Museum and Art Gallery.

The photographic exhibition has moved to Dudley Archives off Tipton Road and is on show now with free admission.

This year's exhibition features 180 colour and black and white prints, along with 125 projected images, including a wide range of subject matter.

Club secretary Eric Broadbent said: "Following the closure of the Dudley Museum and Art Gallery, we have been compelled to find a new location for our prestigious event and are pleased that the Dudley Archive and Local History Centre are able to accommodate our exhibition."

Club members will be on hand each

Saturday for the duration of the event to answer questions and give an insight to the activities of the club.

The selection of photographs was made by external judge David Lowe, including awards for prints and projected images.

The event will run until Saturday, February 18. Opening times are Monday to Friday, 10.30am to 4.00pm, and from 10am to 4.30pm on Saturday.

Vi's campaign is helping the homeless

A HOMELESSNESS charity, set up by a widow in memory of her husband, has received a flood of support.

'Leslie's Care Packages for the Homeless' was launched by Wollaston resident Vi Wood in honour of her husband Leslie, who died, aged 59, from cancer last year.

As a German citizen Vi found herself at risk of losing her home following her husband's death, and became acutely aware of how easily people can fall into homelessness.

Although she and her family have managed to keep a roof over their heads, her experience prompted Vi to begin collecting donations from the public and taking them both to homelessness charities and directly to those sleeping on the streets.

With the help of her family, Vi has now launched a website for the cause, www.lesliescarepackages.org and drop off points have been set up. These can be found at the Coffee Cups community cafe on Thornhill Road, Halesowen; at the Cornbow Shopping Centre's management office next to Argos in Queensway Mall; and at Fair & Square gift shop in Market Street, Stourbridge.

She is now launching an Easter appeal, asking for rucksacks with toilettries for the homeless.

Email Vi at lesliescarepackages@yahoo.co.uk for details.

Work on gas main will lead to diversions

A ROAD in Pensnett will be closed for more than two weeks due to gas repairs.

Queen Street, at the junction of Bell Street, has closed and will remain shut until February 17. The closure takes place while the National Grid carry out gas main reinforcements.

Motorists are advised that diversions will take place during the gas main work. These will be via Bell Street, School Street, Church Street, Chapel Street, Belmont Road and vice-versa.

Family gave me up to save me from Nazis

Dutch Holocaust survivor Henri Obstfeld speaking at the Dudley Holocaust Memorial Commemoration at Dudley College

IMAGINE being separated from your parents at the age of just two.

This is what happened to Henri Obstfeld, who survived the Holocaust as a result of his parents' heart-wrenching decision to leave him with strangers in order to save his life. Speaking in front of a packed auditorium at Dudley College, Henri shared happy family photographs taken when he was a child, which belied the incredible survival story behind them.

The event on Holocaust Memorial Day was organised by Dudley College Students' Union and Dudley North MP Ian Austin, who introduced Henri, aged 76, who now lives in London.

Born in Amsterdam in April 1940, the infant Henri was living through a time of turmoil for the Netherlands with the Nazis invading the country after his birth.

Bombers

After the Luftwaffe's bombers lay waste to Rotterdam, the Dutch surrendered and its Jewish population soon found themselves being targeted in a wave of discriminatory actions. "It wasn't just Jews, but also Jehovah's witnesses, black people, Freemasons, and many other groups," said Henri.

Then his parents Abraham and Jackie received a letter for the toddler to report to the Nazi authority.

Henri remembers being taken by his parents to a house in Arnhem, where a couple lived that he had never previously met. On the second visit, his parents suddenly left him with his Dutch 'foster parents'. He survived thanks to a cover story that he was a nephew who had lost his parents in the bombing of Rotterdam and later heard that his parents had gone into hiding.

At the time he was heart-broken but later understood his parents' selfless act to protect him. They were reunited after the war.

Pensioner's arms were broken by brutal thugs

AN 81-year-old man was woken by masked burglars who beat him with a metal bar in a brutal attack at his Black Country home.

The pensioner was left with broken arms, cuts and bruises and was severely shocked by the ordeal. Detectives at West Midlands Police say they have been left sickened by the attack and are now urging local people to get behind their bid to find the man's attackers.

Police said the victim woke up around 5am on January 21 and disturbed the two masked burglars. When he confronted them, the pair attacked the man with a metal bar.

Despite his injuries, the victim managed to phone 999 and officers raced to his Oldbury home. The raiders took cash and a mobile phone before fleeing from the property in the Whiteheath area of the town.

Bullies

Detective Constable Beth Weir, of West Midlands Police, said: "I've been left sickened by the sheer level of violence used on this man."

"He's 81, what kind of bullies do that?" "We're working hard to find the two attackers but I really need people to help. I would urge people to think back over the last week and consider if they've seen anyone looking out of place or acting suspiciously in the area. No matter how insignificant you think that information may be, please pick up the phone," she said.

The pensioner underwent emergency treatment and was still recovering in hospital after the attack.

Councillor Yvonne Davies, who represents the Langley ward, said she was 'shocked' and 'saddened' by the attack.

She added: "This is not the type of thing that happens in this area. It is decent and quiet and this is absolutely shocking."

"My heart goes out to this gentleman and his family. This is a dreadful thing to hear and if I can be of any help to his family during this time then I would be more than happy to take a call from them," she said.

Anyone who can help police with their investigation is asked to contact DC Weir on 101 or Crimestoppers on 0800 555 111.

Wham! friendship kicked off at match

Cabaret singer Kenny Craig became friends with Wham! stars Andrew Ridgeley and the late George Michael

A MUSICIAN from Sedgley has recalled his time spent with pop duo Wham! who invited him to one of their Birmingham gigs in the 1980s.

Entertainer Kenny Craig became friends with Andrew Ridgeley and the late George Michael after first meeting them during a charity football match at Molineux.

The pop stars invited Kenny to one of their gigs at Birmingham's NEC before inviting him back to their hotel for a chat about music and his career.

Kenny recalled them as 'nice and genuine' young lads who at the time were around 23-years-old. Cabaret singer Kenny said: "I met them during a charity football game held at Wolverhampton Wanderer's Molineux ground in the early 80s. "It was organised by ex-Wolves player Derek Dougan, who has passed away now. The proceeds went to his charity called Year Of The Child."

"After the game we were sat next to Andrew's mother, called Jenny, who was a school teacher. We kept in touch and Jenny sent me tickets to a Wham! concert."

"I was working abroad when I heard the news about George passing. It is such a sad loss. He was very talented songwriter."

'Remarkable' reverend dies at age of 101

TRIBUTES have been paid to a village priest who has died aged 101.

Rev Andrew Collins was ordained in Lichfield in 1961 and, after being curate at All Saints in Sedgley, served as rector at St Mary the Virgin Church in Enville before his retirement in 1990. But he continued taking services well into his 90s. His funeral was held at St Mary the Virgin in January following his death on December 19.

Rev Martin Soar, associate minister at St Mary the Virgin, said: "Andrew was remarkably agile in body, mind and spirit. It was only in the last three or four years that he no longer stood in for me at 8am communion services if I was away."

Pictures give glimpse inside £450k chop shop

THESE pictures show the £450,000 chop shop in Bilston where stolen cars from around the UK were dismantled.

It was uncovered by police after a tracker on a BMW stolen in Stockport sent signals from the garage in Oxford Street.

The Chronicle's sister publication The Express & Star had earlier reported that vehicle repair business boss Eamonn O'Malley had been jailed for three years and seven months for helping to dispose of the cars, with an estimated value of around £450,000. Police found the stolen 1 Series BMW, together with a hoard of parts from vehicles stolen from across the West Midlands, Manchester, London, Stoke and Nottingham. O'Malley, of Stanton Road, Wolverhampton, fled using a ladder to scale a 12ft perimeter wall as police arrived in October 2015.

He was arrested three days later but claimed he sub-let part of the yard to a man who regularly shipped car parts to Poland.

The 58-year-old, who has a string of past convictions for dishonesty and theft offences, admitted 22 charges

A tracker device from a stolen BMW of handling stolen property and was jailed at Wolverhampton Crown Court last week.

The owners of all the cars had been traced by police, the court was told.

Manuals

DC Lee Plant said: "We found parts, keys and owners' manuals relating to an Audi Q5, two Porsches, BMWs and a Mercedes. There was evidence that at least 22 stolen vehicles had passed through O'Malley's yard with a combined value of £448,000.

"Most were stolen in the West Midlands - including Dudley, Sutton Coldfield, Walsall, Selly Oak and Wolverhampton - but others were traced to car thefts in Bromsgrove, Hyde, Bury, Nottingham, Stoke and London.

"O'Malley was providing a market for car thieves across the UK, people who were causing misery and huge inconvenience to motorists, and it's only right given the scale of his illegal operation that he's been handed a long jail term."

Police added a large quantity of stolen Virgin Media set top boxes, internet routers, TV remote controllers, cabling and fitting equipment were also found at O'Malley's car yard.

The boxes matched stock stolen from a van on April 14.

Young Voices are heard at top venue

David Lawrence conducts the massed youth choirs

Belle Vue Primary School's Sarah White takes a bow

THOUSANDS of youngsters have been singing their hearts out as part of one of the largest school choir concerts in the world.

Schools from across the Black Country took part in the Young Voices 2017 event, which is being held at Birmingham's Genting Arena, in front of thousands of proud parents.

Last Tuesday evening's show was just the first of six nights of Young Voices concerts in the city.

Choirs had been in training since

Youngsters from the Black Country and beyond took part in concerts, Jessica Labhart reports

September, learning all 12 songs they performed during the show, as well as all the choreography that saw them get to their feet and dance the night away.

The children, aged from around eight to 12 years old, were some of 130,000 who are involved in the Young Voices 2017 project, which sees youngsters perform at major venues across the UK and internationally. They perform in their school choirs as part of the collective YV Choir.

The project began in the mid-1990s when managing director David Lewis came up with the idea of making music accessible to all children.

Therapy

Now Young Voices hosts 22 concerts around the UK each year, and in doing so, raises money for good causes, which this year includes music therapy charity Nordoff Robbins and anti-hunger charity FareShare.

The glittering event was hosted by Gigi Morley and conducted by David Lawrence. The children sang a variety of songs from Birdhouse In Your Soul, originally performed by They Might Be Giants, to Stronger Together, made popular by Gareth Malone and the Military Wives choir.

The youngsters even wowed the audience with their rendition of African song Maliswe, in the Zulu language, accompanied by African drums and instruments.

Elston Hall pupil Graham Fletcher, aged 11, of Bushbury said: "This is the first time I've performed here. I really love music and I think it's great that we have come out and have the chance to sing together."

Katie Perry, head of music at the school said: "It's amazing to see them all here. They've really been looking forward to it and fitting in extra practice when they can."

Some of the thousands of youngsters at the concerts

Dudley's Alder Coppice Primary School were involved as was Cradley CE Primary, whilst Belle Vue school, Stourbridge also took part. Andrea Perrett, musical director and teacher said: "It is one of the most exciting highlights of the school year for the children and they absolutely love it."

Pupils from Sandwell's Tividale Community Primary School and St John's C of E Primary Academy, as well as St Mary's CE (VC) Primary in Kingsvingford too part as well.

The song Over The Hills took the audience on a 'musical tour through the British Isles' which ended in the children singing in Welsh. Some of the songs were also translated into sign language.

The show also included guest performers, including street dancers Urban Stride, beatbox artists The Beatbox Collective and Irish musician Tabby Callaghan, who finished third on the first series of The X Factor in 2004. He performed his rendition of Guns N' Roses classic, Sweet Child o' Mine. Jazz artist Natalie Williams took to the stage to perform Keane's Somewhere Only We Know and Nina Simone classic I Got Life.

Ben Lewis, managing director of Young Voices said: "When we started this event in 1996 we never thought we would end up here. The popularity of Young Voices has really snowballed and I think that's because we are giving children a unique opportunity – to perform in the same arena where The Vamps and One Direction have performed."

Pupils from St Mary's with teachers Peter Booth and Anne-Marie Greet

It's end for Sabbath – but not for Ozzy

IT STARTED nearly five decades ago with a crack of thunder, a distant bell ringing and then a monstrous riff that shook the earth.

In that moment Heavy Metal was born, created by a young band from Birmingham.

And now it's come full circle, drawing to an end with the final eight shows ever by Black Sabbath. Ozzy Osbourne, Tony Iommi and Geezer Butler are returning home to close the final chapter in the final volume of the incredible Black Sabbath story.

Sabbath's farewell tour, The End, is currently wowing fans all over Europe, surpassing all previous tours with their most mesmerising production ever.

Arena

It will culminate in two nights in their home town at the Genting Arena, Birmingham, with gigs last night (Thursday) and the big finale on Saturday.

And when the tour concludes, it will truly be The End – of one of the most legendary bands in rock 'n' roll history.

Singer Ozzy is aware of the band's mortality. Following a short period that took away Lemmy, David Bowie, Prince and others, he's aware that all things must end.

"Lemmy, man," he says. "That broke my heart. If someone was to say to me, 'what's your depiction of the heavy metal rock star?', I'd say Lemmy Kilminster."

Ozzy has had more than his fair share of brushes with the Grim Reaper. He's been down but not out. "Oh, fing hell have I. Just ask my family. I've nearly died loads. I've had several stomach pumps, my heart stopped twice when I broke my neck on a quad bike. Every time I got stoned and drunk, I didn't get tipsy I got mashed.

"I haven't drunk for three years, I haven't smoked for 12 years, I don't do drugs any time. It's cool."

The band no longer features founding drummer Bill Ward, who left the fold in 2012 after a contract dispute. Ozzy, Tony and Geezer thundered on, releasing 13 in 2013, and embarking on a world tour.

They decided not to do a final album because they didn't want it to fall short of the number 1 they achieved with 13.

But despite this being the band's final tour, Ozzy won't be retiring. "I'm not going to stop entirely," he says. "I'm not going to sit with my slippers on. We're just going to go in different directions."

"Black Sabbath, it's been up and down. And it's good that we've come back together at the end, more or less, to finish on a high note. It's a good way to do it."

Sell-out likely for Red Shoes

ACCLAIMED choreographer Matthew Bourne brings his New Adventures dance company to Birmingham Hippodrome from Tuesday to Saturday as part of his world premiere tour of The Red Shoes.

Bourne's take on one of the most famous movies made about ballet has been so eagerly anticipated that it is likely to sell out its run in Brum and has already been booked to return between July 19 and 22.

And that's no surprise given the way Bourne has invigorated the ballet scene with such productions as his radical male-orientated revamp of Swan Lake, the passionate Car Man, spectacular Edward Scissorhands and romantic vampire-style Sleeping Beauty.

Created

The role of Victoria Page, the girl who dreams of being a great dancer, immortalised on screen by Moira Shearer, has been created by New Adventures star Ashley Shaw (pictured left), who was most recently seen as Aurora in Bourne's Sleeping Beauty. Rising star and fellow Aurora, Cordelia Braithwaite, also plays the role along with Sleeping Beauty favourite Katrina Lyndon in her principal role debut at certain performances.

For tickets see www.birminghamhippodrome.com or call 0844 338 5000. Ballet is also on the agenda at Wolverhampton Grand Theatre where the Russian State Ballet of Siberia make their annual visit from Sunday to Tuesday.

This year's repertoire is The Nutcracker on Sunday (4pm), Swan Lake on Monday (7.30) and Coppelia on Tuesday (7.30).

See the website www.grandtheatre.co.uk or call 01902 429212.

Transatlantic folk unite for Brum gig

SHETLAND fiddler Aly Bain and US dobro master Jerry Douglas are joined by John Paul White, Tift Merritt, Dick Powell, Jim Lauderdale and ex-Fairground Attraction singer Eddi Reader for Transatlantic Sessions at Symphony Hall, Birmingham, on Thursday (Feb 9).

St Leonard's Horses (AKA Kieran Leonard) blends folk, country and rock at the Sunflower Lounge in Brum city centre this Saturday.

Guardian journalist George Monbiot and folk singer Ewan MacLennan, who collaborated on album Breaking The Spell Of Loneliness, are at the MAC, in Cannon Hill Park, Edgbaston on Wednesday.

Wonders are full of melodic power pop

PENNSYLVANIA pop-punk outfit The Wonder Years follow up fifth album No Closer To Heaven with a gig at the O2 Institute tomorrow (Friday) with support from PUP and Tiny Moving Parts.

Howie Payne, from Liverpool group The Stands, is at the Hare & Hounds in Kings Heath on Tuesday.

X Factor boy band Union J play Brum's O2 Academy 2 on Wednesday featuring new member Casey Johnson from Stereo Kicks.

London guitar slingers Inheaven bring their wall of sound to Wolverhampton's Slade Rooms next Thursday (Feb 9) with Freak supporting.

Anthrax are back among the living

IT'S a good week ahead for rock fans. As well as the Black Sabbath gigs at the Genting Arena (see above), New York thrash metal monsters Anthrax are back in Blighty for a series of gigs, including Birmingham's O2 Institute next Thursday, February 9.

The powerhouse five-piece fronted by Joey Belladonna will be blasting Digbeth with fans' favourite album, Among The Living, plus latest record For All Kings. Support from London's The Raven Age.

If you prefer your raw rock vintage style, rockabilly combo The Deadshots are at the Hare & Hounds, Kings Heath, on Sunday.

Famous faces face a test on the waters

Oh to have been a fly on the wall during the meeting to set up this show...

You can imagine it – blown over by the success of Channel 4's Great Canal Journeys featuring married thespians Timothy West and Prunella Scales, not to mention ITV's Barging Round Britain with John Sergeant, those folks at Channel 5 decided they needed to get a piece of the pensionable boat trip action.

Well, you would, wouldn't you?

And if something ain't broke, there's no need to fix it, so the station decided not to tinker with the format too much. As a result they have brought in four famous faces and sent them on their way for an adventure. Hopefully anyway – otherwise it's going to be a slightly dull four-part series.

First into the fray are Debbie McGee and Nigel Havers. She's best known for being the widow of Paul Daniels, and found fame initially as his glamorous assistant (her name tended to be prefaced by the word 'lovely' back in their 1980s heyday); these days she's a star in her own right.

Havers is, of course, that dashing actor who has graced the screen in a number of acclaimed projects, including Chariots of Fire, A Passage to India and Empire of the Sun. He even added a little bit of class to Coronation Street as charming schemer Lewis Archer.

McGee and Havers both have experience of steering boats, so should find their trip a doddle. Unfortunately, that proves to be far from the case...

Their novice neighbours, Lorraine Chase and Simon Callow, struggle too. Chase spent four years as an Emmerdale regular thanks to her role as Steph Forsythe, but is still best known for a string of adverts she made in the 1970s which used her strong cockney accent to their full.

Callow is, of course, an actor of some note, having appeared in numerous acclaimed stage roles, from Shakespeare to Beckett and beyond. He also made a big impact in Four Weddings and a Funeral, and has numerous other film roles to his name. However, he isn't above more lowbrow pursuits – his first TV role was in the Carry On Laughing episode Orgy and Bess, although his part was eventually cut from the finished product.

The opening episode sees the quartet embark on their journey along the Kennet and Avon Canal, one of Britain's most popular waterways. They begin in Bristol, but soon end up in trouble thanks to an altercation with a moored boat.

Debbie tries to raise everyone's spirits by making them taste the fruits of her labours in the galley. However, it's the addition of some alcohol that really gets the party started.

Later, the group encounter a local artist, whose gift of a map opens up a world of canal-side entertainment, and inspires them to visit local vineyards (more booze) and call in on the Avondale singers.

Later episodes will feature a trip down the Llangollen Canal on the border between England and Wales.

SAS: Rogue Warriors BBC2, 9pm

New series. Ben Macintyre uses the SAS archives to examine the history of the British Army special forces unit combining documents, unseen footage and interviews with its founding members to tell the remarkable story behind an extraordinary fighting force. In the first edition, he looks at its formation in the heat of the north African desert in 1941, when eccentric young British army officer David Archibald Stirling had a vision for a new kind of war in which the enemy was attacked from behind their own lines.

TUESDAY

The Moorside BBC1, 9pm

Drama telling the story of the disappearance of nine-year-old Shannon Matthews from the Moorside Estate in Dewsbury. Emotional public appeals for information from her mother Karen Matthews amount to nothing, and the community, led by Julie Bushby, stand by her and make extraordinary efforts of their own to find Shannon. Despite the support, doubts are beginning to creep in for some regarding Karen's behaviour, and friend and neighbour Natalie Brown struggles with her conscience as she becomes convinced that Karen knows more than she is revealing. Sheridan Smith, Sian Brooke and Gemma Whelan star.

WEDNESDAY

Climbing the Property Ladder Channel 5, 9pm

With property shows being a firm fixture on telly schedules for years now, it's hardly surprising that more and more people are deciding to turn their hands to the risky - but often rewarding - world of property development. What is a surprise is the range of people whom this lifestyle attracts. This new series follows those attempting to buy, renovate, and sell houses for profit, including everyone from retirees to youngsters, and single mums to office workers. They include Mary, who was recently laid off and has decided to put her redundancy money and life savings into a run-down Yorkshire cottage. She has her eyes on a healthy £25,000 profit, however her project is at risk of turning into a battle of wills with her builder.

No Offence

Channel 4, 9pm

After finding herself suspended from duty, Deering goes rogue in her efforts to nail Nora. Back at the station, Lickberg tries to control the team, as they urgently intensify the manhunt for one of the Attahs' missing victims. Teegan is sent on an undercover operation and an unlikely alliance is agreed between Nora and the team, who wants to stop a Female Genital Mutilation cutter arriving on her patch. Starring Joanna Scanlan, Rakie Ayola, Sarah Solemani and Saira Choudhry.

THURSDAY

After Brexit: The Battle for Europe BBC2, 9pm

In the wake of last year's referendum result, Britons on both sides of the Brexit debate have been discussing what leaving the European Union will mean for the UK. However, this documentary looks at the implications for the future of EU itself, which is currently facing the biggest challenge in its 60-year history. As the BBC's Europe Editor Katya Adler points out, it's not just Britain's departure that is making waves – populist eurosceptic movements are on the rise across the continent, leading to the prospect of more countries following the UK's example and voting to leave. As Britain begins the controversial and uncertain process of withdrawing, Adler asks whether the Union can survive.

FRIDAY

Jamie and Jimmy's Friday Night Feast Channel 4, 8pm

You might think that good friends and good food combine to make a relaxing Friday night, and usually you'd be right. This edition of old pals Jamie Oliver and Jimmy Doherty's culinary series, however, may prove to be contentious – for Jamie is attempting a paella, the very dish which last year saw the chef draw ire on social media from seemingly the entire population of Spain. His inclusion of chorizo proved particularly controversial, so it will be interesting to see whether the spicy sausage makes it into tonight's recipe. He's cooking the the Valencian staple with actor Martin Clunes, but will they defer to the dish's progenitors, or throw caution to the wind and end up as 'men behaving badly'?

Roast beef, with Yorkshire pudding, potatoes plus vegetables

One of the dining rooms at the restaurant/pub

The French Hen, Bromsgrove Road, Clent, near Stourbridge

The pâté was served as a slab with half a toasted baguette

Family matters at The French Hen

WHAT can be better than Sunday lunch with the family – especially when it's all served up in a cosy, traditional pub?

The French Hen in Clent has been on our 'to do list' for a while now. The pub has a comfortable bar area, two spacious restaurants and a function room.

Being a Sunday afternoon, the majority of tables were filled with families and their young children, so we fitted right in. We'd never been to the pub/restaurant before but straight away we were hit with the family-friendly feel of the whole place and, after being seated, we were served very promptly by two of the small army of young waitresses.

The French Hen has a specific menu for Sundays. The Sunday selection, served from noon until 5pm, was packed with a great selection.

The menu is also incredibly well-priced with two courses costing £12.95 and three courses £14.95.

We opted to split two starters between my wife Kelly, daughter Annabelle, and myself. Pâté maison was one we went for, which was a chicken liver pâté enriched with port, brandy and hard herbs, served with fresh bread, petit leaves and house chutney. The other was garlic mushrooms with the button mushrooms sautéed with onions in a creamy white wine and garlic sauce, served with fresh bread. They were ample to say the least.

The pâté was served as a thick slab, with half a toasted baguette. It was really very tasty, rather like the expensive varieties you can buy from the supermarket.

Flavour

There was just a hint of the port and brandy coming through, which gave it a rich flavour and, washed down with a few sips of the Rioja we had ordered, was a lovely way to start the meal. The mushroom dish was very well cooked and presented, with not too much garlic and butter.

Having finished the starters it was not long before we were presented with the mains, which was great timing for us having a young child.

A traditional Sunday dinner was all I had my eyes on so the only decision to make was to either go for the roast topside of beef, served with a Yorkshire pudding, tender leg of lamb, studded with garlic and rosemary, pork with crispy crackling, served with homemade stuffing, or roasted turkey crown or half a roasted chicken.

After deciding my daughter would probably enjoy the child's version of the roast beef – and knowing she probably wouldn't finish it all – I went for the lamb.

All the dinners came with roasted and new potatoes, and a seasonal vegetable medley, which were served in separate dishes.

It was a nice little touch and meant you could add your own rather than being presented with a huge dinner, which can sometimes be off-putting.

The lamb was very tender and the gravy it came served in was thick. All the vegetables had a slight crunch, while the roast potatoes were lovely and crispy.

Eaten with lashings of mint sauce, it was one of the better Sunday roasts I'd had in a while and I can also vouch for the beef being delicious too, after sneaking a mouthful off my daughter's plate. For my own liking, it could possibly have been pinker in the middle.

Kelly fancied trying something a bit different from the roast – and luckily there was a menu offering just that. Tradition still eventually won the day when she chose ham, egg and chips. The hand-carved cooked ham came with peas and it was very nice. Kelly was surprised with the portion size – especially for the price – which was 'huge' and meant she struggled to finish it all. The large portions meant we simply shared an ice cream – well, we watched Annabelle finish off a children's strawberry ice cream – before getting the bill.

There is also an extensive Sunday baguette menu, which is served noon to 5pm in the bar and garden areas, for those who fancy a lighter bite.

Considering we ordered two starters, two mains, a children's meal, dessert and drink, and a bottle of red – the pint was paid for separately – the fact the bill came to a little over £50 shows how reasonably priced the food and drinks were.

Highly recommended, especially for families.

Kia Rio gets its fourth rejuvenation

For buyers, the supermini category has never been more important. Why? Because modern examples of the breed are now for the first time large enough to function as complete family cars.

Take, for example, the model we're looking at here, Kia's fourth generation Rio. It's as big as a turn of the century Astra or Focus from the Family Hatchback segment, the next pricier class up. More importantly, it's the first really top class supermini the Korean brand has ever brought us.

It's a progression that anyone familiar with Kia will have been expecting. The first two generations of Rio were quite embarrassing but the MK3 model of 2011 was pretty class-competitive. When the wraps came off this fourth generation version in the autumn of 2016 though, it was clear that it was going to be a bit more than that. Here's a car that targets nothing less than the top of the segment in terms of the things that really matter to supermini buyers – styling, running costs and everyday practicality.

The previous generation Rio model didn't advance existing engine technology too much, so it's good to see that Kia has made a bit more effort on this front this time round. Key to the line-up is the down-sized three cylinder 1.0-litre T-GDI petrol unit we first saw on the facelifted MK2 model cee'd family hatch, offered here – as there – with either 98 or 118bhp power outputs, in both cases accompanied by 172Nm of torque. The lightweight nature of this T-GDI powerplant should benefit the Rio's front-end handling, with less mass and inertia for the car to work against under cornering. Less sophisticated are the 82bhp 1.25 and 90bhp 1.4-litre MPI petrol units, a comment also applicable to the 1.4-litre diesel engine, which produces either 69 or 88bhp. All engines apply power to the front wheels. There's a five-speed manual transmission for the base 1.25-litre petrol unit and the 98bhp 1.0-litre T-GDI powerplant. Otherwise, you get a six-speed manual

This Rio certainly looks more distinctive, the front end characterised by the latest evolution of Kia's 'tigrinose' grille, now thinner in height and wider across the front of the car, with a gloss black grille cover.

Inside, the restyled cabin feels more up-market, helped by gloss black trim that lines the central section of a dashboard now more angled towards the driver. At the centre of the fascia is a high-resolution touchscreen. Below, the driver-oriented centre console features fewer buttons, with more ergonomic, concave switches and rotator dials below to control the heating and ventilation. Thanks to 10mm of extra wheelbase, there's much more space to spread out inside – and more bootspace too, 325-litres of luggage room now on offer, about the same as you get in a Focus, despite the fact that this is a Fiesta-segment model.

The New Rio is the first top class supermini the Korean brand has ever brought ut

Don't expect Rio pricing to change much, so as before, this car will sit in the £11,000 to £18,000 bracket. That might sound a lot but most variants will be sold in the £11,000 to £14,500 bracket, which makes it one of the most affordable Fiesta-sized superminis out

As before, equipment levels are strong. More affordable models get a 'floating' 5.0-inch touchscreen audio system with six speakers. Buyers can also specify a 7.0-inch touchscreen infotainment and navigation system, with Kia Connected Services powered by TomTom, as well as Android Auto and Apple CarPlay for full smartphone integration. This Rio will be the first car in the B-segment to have USB ports in the front and rear of the cabin. As for safety, the Rio will be the first car in the B-segment to feature

'AEB' Autonomous Emergency Braking with pedestrian recognition'.

It's easy to see why Kia is one of the fastest growing car makers in the world, doubling its global sales over the last few years thanks to a range of models now seriously troubling the European market's established players. Here's another one that'll add to their concerns, smartly styled and class-leadingly spacious and efficient. As a result, it can now compete head-on with its mainstream rivals and betters many of them.

Latest addition to Ford's luxury spin-off brand

By Simon Davis

The Kuga Vignale is the fourth car to be released under Ford's new flagship brand, following the Mondeo Vignale, the S-Max Vignale and the new Edge Vignale.

In an attempt to move the C-segment SUV towards the more premium end of the market, Ford has plied the Kuga Vignale with a number of new features, and a higher level of standard equipment – including the latest Sync 3 infotainment system.

There are four engine options available with the new Kuga Vignale – two petrols and two diesels. Ford's 1.5-litre EcoBoost petrol engine can be specified with either 148bhp or 180bhp, while the 2.0-litre TDCi diesel is available with 148bhp or 178bhp. Our test car was fitted with the more powerful diesel unit, which was paired with Ford's Powershift automatic transmission and all-wheel drive.

The Vignale makeover has added numerous features to the Kuga's exterior – including chintzy 19-inch polished alloy wheels, plenty of chrome, and Vignale's signature hexagonal grille.

The Kuga's cabin has also been worked on. The seats have been upholstered in quilted leather, and there's plenty of leather around the dashboard and door panels. In our test car, the seats were finished in Ford's signature Cashmere colour – a sort of light cream shade – which looked very smart indeed. There are still a couple of noticeable cheap plastics that can be seen but on the whole, the Kuga's interior works nicely from an aesthetic point of view.

Comfort-wise, the Kuga Vignale won't give you many reasons to moan. The quilted leather seats are comfortable, although they could provide slightly more lateral support, and offer plenty of adjustability to make finding the correct driving position a breeze.

The Kuga Vignale's five-seat layout offers plenty of room for passengers in both the front and the back. Headspace is plentiful throughout the cabin, and rear passengers won't feel shortchanged when it comes to legroom.

In terms of boot space, the Kuga Vignale manages a decent 406 litres of storage capacity. Folding the rear seats down will extend this to 1,603 litres. As part of the Vignale treatment, Ford has also given the Kuga a hands-free tailgate. By simply waving your foot under the rear bumper, the boot will pop open – provided you have the car keys in your pocket.

Dynamically, the Kuga offers a rather pleasing drive. Sure, it's not the most exciting driving experience in the world, but it has plenty of grip through the corners and the steering is well weighted and provides a good amount of feedback. It rides in a comfortable manner thanks to a softer suspension set-up, although this does give way to a noticeable amount of body roll when cornering enthusiastically.

Out on the motorway, the Kuga Vignale makes for a rather fantastic mile cruncher. Road and wind noise aren't terribly intrusive, and the 2.0-litre diesel engine accelerates smoothly and fairly quietly. As mentioned earlier, the cabin is an incredibly comfortable place to be, which means covering long distances in the Kuga is a far from exhausting experience.

While the Kuga isn't exactly a small car, its size shouldn't prove to be too much of a problem when it comes to driving in an urban environment. Thanks to decent visibility out of the cabin and the addition of Ford's Perpendicular Parking system – which actually parks the car for you – you should never have too much trouble fitting the Kuga into a space.

Prices for the Kuga Vignale begin at £30,795 – which is fairly pricey for a C-segment SUV adorned with the Blue Oval. That said though, you do get a large amount of kit for your money. Ford throws in its new Sync 3 infotainment system as standard, which incorporates satellite navigation, Apple Car Play and Android Auto, DAB radio, and Bluetooth connectivity to name a few features. You can also give the system voice commands such as "I need petrol" to inform the navigation to direct you to the closest petrol station.

Vignale has chintzy 19-inch polished alloy wheels

The Vignale makeover has added numerous features to the Kuga's exterior

Anaesh Patel with New Zealand Test-playing batsman Ross Taylor

Cricket prospect aims to have batsmen in a spin

SPORTING FEATURE

By Lewis Cox

A CRICKETING prospect from Walsall is spinning his way to India after landing a scholarship experience – and will bring his talent to the Birmingham League next season.

Anaesh Patel is one of just three nationwide winners who will be jetting over to Asia in March after success in the Southall Travel Spin Scholarship scheme.

The competition, held for promising spinners between the ages of 18 and 21 and not contracted to a First Class county outfit, was held at the Leicestershire CCC Indoor Cricket Centre.

And talented 21-year-old Patel, who got into the sport as a youngster with the help of a 'cricket-crazy' father, wants to make a splash in India before returning and unleashing his skills on the local scene.

Settled

The young hopeful has featured for a host of local sides in his junior years, cutting his teeth with Wolverhampton, Walsall, West Bromwich Dartmouth, Staffordshire under-13s and Worcestershire under-17s.

As an 18-year-old he left for Cardiff to study mathematics at university, where he featured for Cardiff Cricket Club in the South Wales Premier League.

Now studying risk management in Leicestershire and commuting from home, Patel is settled and ready to return to the West Midlands scene for the 2017 season – after he enjoys an all-expenses paid week-long spin scholarship in Mumbai.

On winning the event – sponsored by Southall

"It's important to spin the ball and make the batsman drive and also to have confidence in your bowling."

Travels and Club Cricket Conference – Patel said: "I am over the moon to have won the award especially as it was a national competition."

"I am really looking forward to visiting India and gaining further experience on sub-continent pitches. I would like to thank to my bowling coach Kevin Lyons (Glamorgan CCC) and batting coach Ron Headley for the many hours they have spent developing my bowling and batting skills."

"It goes without saying that without the support of my parents this victory would not have been possible."

As well as mixing it with the likes of experienced coach Lyons in Wales and former West Indies star Headley (Worcestershire batting coach), Patel has been able to rub shoulders with the likes of New Zealand Test players Tom Latham and Ross Taylor and West Indian great fast bowler Michael Holding.

Headley arranged the surprise visit of legendary paceman Holding, nicknamed 'Whispering Death', after Patel and his young team-mates had been wowed by the 2010 film 'Fire in Babylon' – an ode to when West Indies dominated world cricket.

He was also invited to pit his wits against the Black Caps stars, with Patel bowling at Latham, Taylor and co in a star-studded net session.

Patel's dad Nareesh, a Level 2 ECB qualified cricket coach, explained how his son would become transfixed with the game at an early age – watching stars on the television and trying to recreate scenes in the house, much to the annoyance of his wife.

"We never pushed him but he was always into it and enjoyed it," said Nareesh.

"He's worked hard in everything he has done and cricket is the same."

Surreal

"We're already looking for a local team for Anaesh to play with next season after the trip to Mumbai. It will be his first time out there and to go on a scholarship there will be amazing for him."

Anaesh hopes to still make the grade in professional cricket, citing his risk management degree as an option to fall back on.

"Initially I wanted to be a batsman, but soon noticed that I could turn the ball so I was encouraged to bowl leg spin and have never looked back," said the youngster.

"I really couldn't believe it that I had won. It was totally surreal and I am really looking forward to going to India."

"I think it's important to spin the ball and always make the batsman drive and also to have confidence in your bowling and skill levels."

Barcelos is scourge of Glassboys

Stourbridge 1 Grantham 4

FELIPE Barcelos was the scourge of the Glassboys again as the Brazilian helped himself to a hat-trick in a 4-1 Integro League Cup win.

A much-changed Glassboys side was soundly beaten on Monday night against a side now unbeaten in 14 games.

Barcelos had previously netted a hat-trick against Stourbridge while playing for Oxford City in 2011.

He had already glanced a fourth minute header wide before he was gifted the easiest of goals three minutes later thanks to a calamitous mix-up between Drew Canavan and Jacob Wedderburn.

Curtis Burrows doubled the lead on 15 minutes.

Luke Benbow reduced the arrears on 25 minutes, but a short back-pass from Lewis Probert was pounced upon by Barcelos for his second on 35 and he rounded off the scoring with 15 minutes to go.

The teams meet again for a key league game in Grantham on February 11.

Sutton Coldfield 4 Stourbridge 1

BOSS Gary Hackett vowed to give his players "the benefit of the doubt" after their long unbeaten league run was ended by struggling Sutton on Saturday.

The Glassboys were previously unbeaten in 12 Evo-Stik Premier Division games and had not conceded in five.

Stour's collapse began seven minutes into the second half when ex-Glassboy Sean Geddes scored from the spot.

David Howarth converted at the near post to double Sutton's lead just before the hour and six minutes later slotted home Max Wright's centre.

Howarth completed his hat-trick before a Jordan Archer consolation.

The Glassboys dropped down to sixth and Hackett said: "Sutton were the better side and we were well beaten. Too many of our players did not perform but they deserve the benefit of the doubt."

Dunkley double gives Yeltz more breathing space

Halesowen 4 Mickleover Sports 2

HALESOWEN hero Tristan Dunkley fired two goals to give Yeltz breathing space from the Evo-Stik Northern Premier danger-zone.

Mickleover have shipped 19 goals in a torrid run of six straight defeats and made a dreadful start when Halesowen's Lee Chilton steered home a loose ball from Matt Birley's first minute shot. A deflected Birley shot then struck the bar before Mickleover enjoyed a good spell either side of the interval.

Pressure told as Tyler Blake equalised in the 59th minute. But Yeltz regained the lead a minute later as Birley teed up Dunkley.

Platt made further excellent reflex saves to keep out efforts from Mickleover's McGrath and Blake before Dunkley met Ethan Delaney's cross and turned superbly on the edge of the penalty area to fire in his second after 75 minutes.

Substitute Delaney controlled Birley's 89th minute free-kick and slammed home Halesowen's fourth goal but Mickleover had the final say with Blake completing a brace.

Hero Luke's back in home paddock

Boxing

Andy Keates, who has twice failed in steps up to the English title, for those area honours.

Summers was knocking on the door of national honours at light heavyweight at the start of last year, but a stop-start 2016 halted his progress. The 29-year-old has now taken ex-pro Richard Ghent as his main coach and will train out of Ghent's RG Box Fit base in Bilston.

Also on the card are the undefeated Tom Stokes, from West Bromwich, Manny 'Pac Man' Zaber, of Old Hill and Wolverhampton's Kyle Williams, 24. Johnson also bloods two new debutants, Lauren Johnson, also from Wolverhampton and West Bromwich's Dwain Grant.

Now 32, 'the Black Widow' is coming into the pro game as a middleweight after learning her craft at the Wodensborough and Walsall Wood clubs. Grant, meanwhile, nicknamed 'Cheeky', could be a surprise package, coming from the unlicensed circuit.

The card is completed by heavyweight Dilly Singh, a prospect from Coventry with two points wins to his credit, and Brummie bantamweight Ijaz Ahmed. Tickets are £30 and £60 ringside on 0845 111 2900.

DK GAME PLAN WORKS A TREAT

Crewe & Nantwich 8 DK 24

A NUMBER of the Heathbrook faithful made the journey to Crewe & Nantwich and saw the team adhere to their game plan, which meant this was arguably the best team performance of the season so far.

This was achieved by two main factors – an excellent defence, with a fine display of tackling, added to a game awareness that ensured DK dominated the field position battle.

They did have to come from behind, though, with the hosts taking first blood with a 14th minute try.

A penalty try, converted by Duncan Tompkins – a replacement for the injured Nic Adams – put DK in front.

The remainder of the first half continued to the DK pattern of play, strong defence, and an increasing attacking threat with the centres Stef Shillingford and Mitch Grealey threatening on strong cut back runs, and Dave Pitt and Liam Marshall, making ground when the ball reached them.

Slope

Their tactics bore fruit in the second half and DK increased their lead following some good work from Connah Jones at stand-off which led to Dave Pitt bagging a try out wide. The conversion attempt from Tompkins was dead on line, but inches short.

With DK now playing down the slight slope, they were starting to build up a head of steam, but C&N struck back with a penalty.

DK did manage to turn the screw in the final quarter, however.

Although the game was not yet won, the visitors stuck to their attacking philosophy and kicked a penalty into the corner, the line out led to a scrum in DK's favour. A drive then a pick and go led to a driving maul which saw replacement Pete Griffiths come up with the ball and claim the try and C&N lost a player for foul play. Tompkins rubbed salt in the wounds by slotting the conversion from the touch line.

In the closing moments, Arran Hudson touched down for the bonus point try.

Stepping out before big fight

HALESOWEN boxer Lennox Clarke trod the Banks's Stadium turf ahead of topping the bill at the Walsall FC venue next month.

The super middleweight will headline Errol Johnson's four-fight 'Battleground' bill on February 17.

Three other fighters, Lichfield flyweight Brad Foster, Swadlincote super lightweight Connor Parker and West Bromwich light heavyweight Josh Stokes, joined him in making a half-time appearance during the Saddlers' 3-1 win over Bristol Rovers.

The quartet handed out certificates to Walsall's Academy Players of the Month from under-9s to under-16s. Baggies fan Clarke said: "I enjoy fighting at Walsall. It's a good venue and the fans are close to the action. I always get a good reception from the football fans too."

Clarke tops the bill in an eight-round contest against 28-year-old Pole Bartmiej Gaftka.

Foster takes part in a six round contest, though scheduled opponent Brett Fidoe is no longer available. Parker steps in against former English title challenger Liam Richards, while Stokes, brother of unbeaten middleweight Tom, will debut at light heavyweight against Lincoln's Mitch Mitchell.

Standard tickets are £35, available by calling the boxers, or £60 VIP tickets for tables of 10, with two-course meal. Call 01922 651 414/416.

Bishop first Hoop home in race slog

THERE was more cross country "cup" action for athletes from Dudley King-swinford Running Club at the weekend as a small group took part in the Midlands Cross Country Championships.

With thousands travelling to the East Midlands to take part in a competition with a history going back to 1879 and boasting a roll of honour that includes some of the best names in the sport the blue hoops were rubbing shoulders with the best in the region.

The race, held at Prestwold Hall in Loughborough, was run over a testing undulating course of open parkland, and with age group races starting during the morning by the time the blue hoops took to the field there was already a well defined muddy furrow to follow.

The ladies were off first over a three-lap course covering a distance of 8k with Helen Tromans putting illness and missed training behind her to come home in 79th place in 42.03, Hannah McGuire was 128th in 46.53, Carol Fisher 150th in 48.23, Jacqui Elson-Whittaker finished in 48.57 to take 154th place and Cilla Harding was 185th in 54.51.

The men's race was away just over half an hour later over a four-lap course, advertised at 12k, approximately seven miles. However it became clear that the course would come up significantly longer, with finishers clocking nearer nine and a quarter miles.

DK were only able to field five sixths of a team and with freezing cold sleet and a thunderstorm midway through the race, the event became a proper slog. Darran Bishop made the best of his way home in the conditions to finish in 170th place in 63.45, Dave Norman finished in 65.19 to take 201st place, Mark Homer was 219th in 66.46, Andy Weaver came home in 301st place in 74.35 and Richard Jones was 324th in 75.52.

Winter training put to test by triathletes

THIRTEEN Black Country triathletes put their winter training to the test in the Trail Half Marathon Wales in Snowdonia. James Lewis was first back for the club in 1:39:26, 13th male overall and fourth in the Vet 40 age group.

Ben Monkton finished in 1:40:23, Lee Moreton in 1:44:17, ninth in age group, Jon Link in 1:49:11, Rob Kennard in 1:54:33, fifth in Vet 50, Tim Lake 1:55:30, Keith Bate in 2:01:07, the second male Vet 60, David Nash in 2:01:57, David Hathaway in 2:02:40, Nigel Bolton in 2:10:03, Mark Evans in 2:15:26, Nigel Briscoe in 2:20:24 and Julie Black in 2:35:20.
